THE TIDE OF POPULARITY

Is Rolling Grover Cleveland Toward the White House.

The Booms of Many Favorite Sons Are Collapsing.

Tammany's Ferocious Tiger is no Longer a Ruling Power

In the Councils of the Great Democratic Party.

Opening Day of the National Convention in Chicago.

Isaac P. Gray, of Indiana, in the Lead for the Vice Presidency.

The Candidate of the Masses—The Man Who Demonstrated That "Public Office Was a Public Trust"—Is Far in the Lead.

Chicago, June 21.—(Special)—One stubborn fact the Hill men, or anti-Cleveland men, do not seem to realize is that the Cleveland vote is so strong that it not only almost reaches the requisite two-thirds now, but that this great vote includes more than one-third of all the delegates in the convention, so loyal and devoted to the ex-president that they will stand like an immovable rock against the progress of the opposition. This impregnable position commands the situation, and sooner or later the antis must see it and make peace with Mr. Whitney.

Notwithstanding the odds against the field the opposition felt more encouraged last night, and were boastful of their own strength. Carefully revised estimates, however, do not substantiate their claims.

The Cleveland men push their work in every direction and if their enthusiasm shall be transferred to the campaign they may do much to establish their faith that Cleveland can be elected without the vote of New York. Just how, nobody seems to know, but hope springeth eternal in the breast of the democrat, and upon the food of hope and faith a remarkably strong body may grow and flourish and succeed.

The claim of the Hill men that Cleveland will lose New York is met by the counter assertion that he will carry New York by 50,000. So read the great streamers in the leading hotels, and enthusiastic followers of Clevelasd are met at every turn prepared to demonstrate on paper how it will be done. Would that their claims may be transferred to votes that will count the same way in November.

The situation is one of open discussion of the prospects of the campaign. There are no secrets. The strong and weak points of Cleveland and Hill, Gorman and Boies, Gray and Pattison and the other favorite sons, are freely talked about and, generally, in good humor. It is worth much to see Mr. Whitney at work. Self possessed, good natured, resourceful, energetic, aggressive, he goes through a state delegation like a cyclone and a Cleveland path can be traced wherever he goes.

The anti-Cleveland democrats who cling to the tradition that the party must carry New York to succeed, are dazed at the audacity of the Cleveland managers. They cannot understand how it ever will be possible to carry a presidential election without the Empire state, though all concede that when it may be done democracy will command a stronger position in the politics of the country.

The antis offer one strong argument that has effect on the opposition to Cleveland, among the old soldiers, on account of the pension vetoes. They say the 90,000 pensioners in New York and the 50,000 in Indiana will be afraid to trust Cleveland. True, it is that the unscrupulous Raum will work his department for all it is worth and, as the vetoes affected Cleveland in Indiana in 1888, it is reasonable to expect trouble in the same quarter this year, with the same candidate.

West Virginians claim that Cleveland is not so strong as his party in their state, and that as it was uncomfortably close in 1888, there is danger with the old candidate in 1892. This talk does not come from the delegates, who are here for Grover Cleveland, and they can not be influenced to turn against him.

The antis say Cleveland will lose New York, Indiana, Connecticut and West Virginia, with only six electoral votes gained in Michigan as an offset.

Where will this loss be made good?

The Cleveland people are resourceful and have a ready affirmation for every negative. They look to Iowa and Ohio for hopeful results, Nebraska doubtful, Connecticut, Indiana and West Virginia sure, with a possible loss to the republicans of Kansas by reason of the probable fusion of the democrat and alliance vote.

This showing will clearly offset all that the Hill men claim against Cleveland. The old administration advocates also point to the disaffection of influential republicans and say this trouble will balance the democratic row in New York.

In this line of argument the statement of a prominent New Yorker, a republican, who attended the Minneapolis convention, is not without value. The gentleman referred to was a Blaine shouter. Asked why, he said the great conservative class of business men in New York, the middle and small class of retailers, were so discriminated against by the McKinley law that they will not vote for Harrison who represents the extreme idea of class legislation. He said Blaine's reciprocity notions were popular, therefore he was for Blaine.

Before leaving Minneapolis the gentleman said the class he referred to would vote for Grover Cleveland in preference to Benjamin Harrison. This sentiment is reflected by the Cleveland workers in the Chicago convention. They are emphatic in saying that Mr. Harrison is much weaker than his party in the city of New York.

This straw is also worth much in feeling the business pulse: A prominent railroad contractor, a republican, said to a party in the Grand Pacific hotel last night that he should construct three railroads this year if Cleveland is nominated, and none if he is not. Asked to explain himself, he added that money is plenty in the east, and that within the past two weeks New York capitalists assured him that if Cleveland is the nominee of the democratic convention they know their investments will be safe and that they will spend money freely for railroad construction and other improvements. Such talk from non-partisan business men counts more than the shouts of the enthusiasts or the eternal din of forty brass bands.

The antis were sorely put out by the arrival of Senator Palmer, who came from Washington almost unheralded. The biggest kind of a favorite son racket had been stirred in the Illinois delegation, much to the discomfiture of the Cleveland forces. It promised to spread into adjoining states, but it is stopped for the present. The veteran brought the delegation up to an alignment on Cleveland's ponderous boom and pacified the boys by telling them they may vote for him if Cleveland can not be nominated in two or three ballots. This permission is like chasing phantoms that never materialize. The Palmer boom is laid away by the old general himself and is in mighty respectable company, as the favorite son that was, but is not, is a numerous quantity in this convention.

It would not be true to say that Gov. Campbell would not like lightning to play around his open brow. Of course he woul. Who would not, of the big leaders? but Jimmy has his calculating head on all the time and will not allow anybody, friend or otherwise, to use him as a club to knock some other fellow down.

Among the distinguished democrats in attendance at the convention is ex-Senator William A. Wallace, of Pennsylvania, a brainy leader of a few years ago, but now almost forgotten by the hundreds who make up the active forces of the present day conventions. The old fights between Randall and Wallace were prominent features of the conventions of 1876 and 1880. The old commoner is saying many kind words for Grover Cleveland.

Another quiet, but forceful man, is ex-Senator Bayard, of Delaware. Of course he is doing much work for his old chief, and it is pleasant to know that five members of Cleveland's cabinet are here, loyally and energetically at work for him. The mugwump may think this is an exhibition of offensive partisanship, but the ex-secretaries are here as private citizens and not like the twenty-five hundred office holders who were at Minneapolis working for bread and butter.

Early this morning the Cleveland managers were resting quietly. They are assured of certain victory and do not worry. All night long the opposition consulted and combined, and plotted and schemed. They are without a common rallying point, and one by one their expectations fail. There is no reason to change opinion, or shift position. Mr. Cleveland will be the nominees of the convention, and there will not be many ballots. The politicians begin to realize that the people want Grover Cleveland, and the conviction grows that once nominated the people will see that he is elected.

TURNING TO BOIES.

Tammany's Last Chance to Defeat Grover Cleveland.

Chicago, June 21.—The Cleveland opposition has taken another turn in its mad struggle to defeat the ex-president. At 12 o'clock to-day the Tammany managers informed Brice and Watterson that Gorman could not command the western vote, and would have to be dropped. They advised that an effort be made to unite on Boies. This was done. After a hurried secret conference it was agreed at 1 o'clock to-day to make a rally for Boies. This was done in order to break the Cleveland strength in the west, and, if possible, to frighten Illinois away from the ex-president under the threat that if the delegates did not take up Palmer or Morrison the state would lose its opportunity and the prize would go to Iowa.

This shows the desperate straits of the oppositon. In a single moment Gorman was thrown overboard, but in this act Cleveland gains Maryland, as the delegation of that state will go to him solid.

It is known that Tammany will go to Boies in a jump if he can carry any of the northwestern delegates from Cleveland. It was reported to-day that the California delegation is weakening and that some of the leading members are ready to drop Cleveland after a few ballots are taken or when the delegates have satisfied their consciences that they have followed rather half-way instructions to vote for Cleveland.

Delegate-at-large Foote of Oakland wasn't far away from the Boies headquarters this morning and he was talking anti-Cleveland very strong. The silver issue, he said, had weakened Cleveland. Were it not for his instructions binding him to vote for Cleveland, Foote said he would vote for Boies.

To say that Senator Shields was delighted at the favorable turn of affairs for Boies is expressing it mildly. He almost shouted for joy when he called the Iowa meeting to order. He said not a word about the good news, but he imparted it to a few chosen friends.

"Unless I am very much mistaken," he said to one of his confederates, "we will have over 190 votes on the first ballot. It would be suicide to nominate Cleveland and it is the old office-holding crowd which is pushing Cleveland onto an unwilling party. If it weren't for the 64 votes Cleveland has in the hopelessly republican state of Pennsylvania he would have no show at all."

Senator Shields had nothing to say for publication regarding the little deal which he had made. "You can say, though," he added, "that Senator Brice and Mr. Watterson are very friendly toward us and that we are going to surprise the country when it comes to taking a vote."

Senator Shields had scarcely called the delegates to order before Delegate Thomas of South Carolina entered the room and whispered to the chairman that South Carolina had voted to cast her 13 votes solid for Horace Boies. Senator Shields grasped Mr. Thomas' hand and said huskily: "Iowa greets South Caroline, which will have the honor of casting her vote for the next president of the United States."

LIKE A HANDSOME BRIDE

The Great Wigwam Smiled on the Delegates.

Chicago, June 21.—The democratic wigwam looked this morning like a bride on the wedding morn. It was a thing of beauty, and it might be a joy forever were it not for the fact that five days after the adjournment of the convention it must, under the contract made with the city, be razed to the ground.

The work of beautifying the interior has been done and well done. There were no pine boards, no unseemly joists or timbers, to cause a pang even in the aesthetic hearts of the delegates and visitors from the Hub. Everything on which bunting could be fastened, whether nailed, draped or festooned, has been utilized, and a peep inside the doors gave impressions of fairy-land. The red, the white and the blue had been woven and interwoven into innumerable designs in artistic fashion.

Thousands of yards of bunting have been fantastically arranged on the front of the galleries. Around the balconies were suspended the coats of arms of the various states, alternating with big rosettes and the stars and stripes.

Over the platform were flags, shields and rosettes in bewildering display, forming a back-ground against which rested pictures of Jefferson, Jackson, Tilden, Thurman, Hancock, McClellan, Cleveland, Hill, Palmer and other national democrats of this and other generations. The arch over the speaker's platform was surmounted by the arms of the United States flanked by two immense spread eagles, while all about the hall were the birds of freedom, with wings outstretched in the conventional attitude.

In front of the boxes in the rear of the speaker were two immense busts of Andrew Jackson and Stephen A. Douglas, wreathed with laurel and mounted upon magnificent pedestals. The doors opening into the passages leading both for the delegates and the visitors and the press were opened at 10 o'clock, and from that time on there was a steady inpour into the immense structure. The visitors were earlier on the ground than the delegates, and whiled away the time by calling for cheers for their respective candidates.

It was noticeable that more ladies were in the office than was the case at Minneapolis, and it was likewise noticeable that most of them sported Cleveland badges.

For a while the delegates straggled in by twos and threes, but as the noon hour approached the arrivals became more numerous.

The Ohio delegation was one of the first to put in an appearance in a body, and as soon as the familiar features of ex-Governor Campbell were recognized there was the first hearty burst of applause of the morning.

The New Yorkers with Gov. Roswell B. Flower and Gen. Daniel E. Sickles as their head also came in for a hearty welcome, which called forth recollections of the reception that was accorded to John Kelly when he marched into the exposition building on a similar occasion eight years ago.

The Indiana delegation looked lonesome without the once familiar features of the lamented Hendricks.

As the delegates filed in and were seated many familiar faces were seen among the throng. The clear-cut statesmanlike face of ex-Secretary Thomas F. Bayard loomed up among the Delawarians.

Ex-Assistant Postmaster-General Stevenson was conspicuous in the Illinois section. Senator Voorhees the tall sycamore of the Wabash, was at the head of the Hoosier column.

From Kansas there was ex-Governor George Glick, an from Kentucky, Henry Watterson. Senator Gorman and Gov. Brown divided the honors among the Marylanders, and Gov. John A. Russell and Gen. Patrick A. Collins, who sat side by side with the delegates from the Hub, attracted more than their share of attention.

Don M. Dickinson slid in unobserved, and took a seat among the Michigan men. There were few in the vast audience who recognized ex-Gov. Hauser, of Montana, but a mighty cheer followed the recognition of Gov. Boyd, of Nebraska. Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, and Editor William M. Singerly came in for a note of welcome.

John Ireland, of Texas, was one of the late comers, and so was ex-Secretary William F. Vilas, of Wisconsin. The latter was closely followed by Gen. E. S. Bragg, he who loved Cleveland for the enemies he had made, and the reappearance of the eloquent old veteran deBadB ance in one more convention of the eloquent old veteran was the signal for a roar of applause.

CLEVELAND AND GRAY.

Such, it is Believed, Will be the Chicago Ticket.

Chicago, June 21.—The democratic presidential ticket for 1892 will be Cleveland and Gray, or at least such is the general impression of the leading men of all factions.

The program as generally understood around Cleveland headquarters was that Wilson, of West Virginia, would be the permanent chairman of the convention, and that no fight would be made in the convention over the temporary chairmanship.

Gov. Abbett, it is believed, is slated to make the nominating speech for Cleveland. The above result is believed to have been brought about by the enforcement of the unit rule in the great states of Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania and Missouri.

The Cleveland victory, it must also be admitted, is in a large measure due to the firm stand taken on behalf of the ex-president by Senator Palmer, of Illinois; ex-Gov. Campbell, of Ohio, and Editor Morss, of the Indianapolis Sentinel.

The three strong anti-Cleveland states are South Carolina, North Carolina and Mississippi, in all of which the alliance sentiment is stronger, and opposition to free coinage is heterodoxy. Virginia is nearly evenly divided; in Alabama Mr. Cleveland will have more than half the delegation and possibly two-thirds of it, and in other states the conviction seems to be that all opposition to Cleveland is now futile.

IT IS ALL ONE WAY.

The Powerful Opposition Cannot Stem the Cleveland Current.

Chicago, June 21.—(Special)—The largest political convention ever held in America assembled in the big wigwam on Lake front at noon to-day. There are seats for 20,000 people, but there are strangers enough in Chicago to overflow several store boxes as large as the one which the local committee has provided.

On the outside it is a hugh box, and has the appearance of being a degree hotter than hades itself.

Inside it is cool and comfortable, a vast amphitheatre, well decorated, and inviting in appearance.

It is not so well arranged as the Exposition hall in Minneapolis, neither are the acoustic effects as good, but it is roomy, and will be historically remembered as the place where President Cleveland and Vice-President Gray were nominated in 1892.

This will be the ticket.

There is no getting away from the combination, though many delegates believe Boies would be a stronger vice presidential candidate.

The combined work of the opposition, and the powerful influence of Tammany, are playthings in the hands of Whitney.

Others have aided in carrying out his instructions, but he is the one great master spirit of this convention, and his will dominates everything.

The procession might as well move today, for Cleveland is clearly the winner, but a ballot will not be taken until Thursday.

It is remarkable how the opposition melts away and the doubtful and wavering wheel into line for the great president that was and is to be.

In this mighty Cleveland movement the strength of the traditionary two-thirds rule is seen at its best.

A man who without effort commands two-thirds of so great a convention as this must represent the sentiment of his party.

There is little room for contention and heated opposition after such a display of strength. The fault-finder who says Cleveland does not represent his party should witness the enthusiasm of this convention.

If ever a political movement sprang from the people with irresistible force it is this determination to again make Cleveland president of the United States.

Shrewd politicians begin to open their eyes wide and let in upon the retina the brightness of honest democracy.

Jimmy Campbell will also come out of this convention with flying colors. His popularity is taken up by the bands which make the streets and hotels ring with "The Campbells are Coming."

About Thursday night it will be Cleveland and Gray.

THOMAS F. BAYARD,

The ex-Secretary Says Cleveland is the Only Man in the Race.

Chicago, June 21.—Ex-Secretary of State Bayard has arrived in the city and taken his seat in the Delaware headquarters. Old democrats from other states came in to shake hands with the tall and courtly lord of Delaware, and his amazing memory of names and faces and family histories was never more fully in evidence. He either knew the caller personally or his father or his grandfather.

"I don't know that I can tell the papers anything about the present situation which is not already known to the whole country," Mr. Bayard said. "There is only one candidate here, and his name is Cleveland. The demand of the democracy of the country for him is so strong, so insistent, that the convention would bow to it, even if, as it is not, it were adverse to the ex-president.

"This is a point that I cannot put too strongly. In Delaware no other name has been discussed. In other states, while some candidates have been mentioned, it is so potent a fact that our party wants Cleveland that argument is not worth while. Nomination of politicians; no adroit work of any set or combination affect the matter. The convention has but to ratify the popular choice and go through the formalities necessary to make Mr. Cleveland officially, as he is popularly, the democratic candidate. This done, its function will have been completed."

"Then, senator, you attach little importance to the fight in New York."

"Only this much, that it gives Senator Hill the opportunity of his life. The New York storm can be quelled as easily as it was raised, and upon Senator Hill will devolve the duty as a democrat to end it. He is a young man, but a wise man and a loyal democrat, and when he sees how imperative is the demand made by the country for Cleveland, he must fall in here and do his duty to the party.

"Of course he will do it. It is an insult to Senator Hill to suggest even by implication that he will not lend his full energy to the election of our candidate. It is within his right to do all that has been done in Chicago up to the present time; but the nomination once made, the situation changes, and Senator Hill and the gentlemen who have done such excellent work for him will be for the nominee."

"Then, senator, you attach no importance to the talk about Gorman?"

"Of course not. Do you, or can anybody, imagine that Senator Gorman would be present in Chicago if he had any purpose of permitting his name to go before the convention?"

"Boies is an avowed candidate, Senator Bayard."

"Yes, and Gov. Boies' friends came to the convention with a magnificent showing for their man. He has redeemed a state that was conceded to be republican, and he is possessed of undoubted strength. But, like Gorman, Boies' time has not yet come. Despit his claim the party turns to Cleveland and will have no other."

"Russell, of Massachusetts, is also spoken of, senator."

"Not, I think, with his own consent. Gov. Russell is like Gorman, a young man with a great future before him."

"Who will have the second place on the ticket, senator?"

"Some western man. I should say, who has shown his strength in his own locality."

STAND BY CLEVELAND.

New York's Big Democratic Club is for the ex-President.

New York, June 21.—The Democratic club, at its meeting last night, passed resolutions affirming the belief that Grover Cleveland was the one candidate who could be relied upon to carry the state of New York and asking the delegation from this state to support him.

THE SILVER MEN.

They Hold an Interesting Caucus in Chicago.

Chicago, June 21.—Confusion and excitement were flung into the conference of silver men almost at the outset. The explosion came from a premature suggestion that the caucus proceed to talk over the matter of candidates. Instantly there was a hubub. "It's no use." "Couldn't agree!" "Too close to the convention now," and dozens of similar comments met the proposal.

The understanding among the leading spirits in the conference was that an effort should be made to concentrate the silver votes under the lead of Colorado solidly for Gorman. Practical refusal of the caucus to even consider the matter, much less unite upon a candidate, was a disagreeable surprise; but those who were chiefly instrumental in getting the caucus together adroitly avoided forcing the issue at the beginning that threatened, if pressed, to precipitate perhaps irretrievable dissension.

The dulcet eloquence and quick intelligence of T. M. Patterson, of Denver, was brought into place. He carefully avoided any mention of presidential candidates and urged a full expression for every man present as to what should be done, and the best method of going about it.

The 42 delegates present as a result of Patterson's delicate maneuvering, were soon engaged in an earnest but harmless discussion of the phraseology of a silver plank, the most ingenious schemes by which the plank, when constructed, could be pushed through the platform committee, and the course to be pursued when the platform reached the convention.

Every man from the Rocky mountains that came to Chicago loaded with an address on the silver question was given full swing to unburden himself. The "round-up" came in the form of a motion to appoint a committee of one from each state represented to help frame the much-discussed plank. The motion was carried, and by this time the inclination to pugnaciousness so prominent early in the proceedings had thoroughly evaporated.

Seizing the favorable opportunity, Patterson again took the floor, and after pointing out how much depended upon united action, gradually led up to a statement that he had originally been a Hill man, but of late had become convinced that the most available man from a silver standpoint, the candidate favorable to the silver interests who had aroused the least antagonism and was most likely to win was Gorman, of Maryland.

When Patterson's remarks were reinforced by T. J. O'Donnell, another Colorado delegate of marked ability, who proclaimed himself an original Gorman man, the temper of the caucus toward the Maryland senator began to show symptoms of decided warming up.

Clark, of Nevada, helped on the boom.

The Mntana delegates were not slow to fall into line, and the representatives forming the remainder of the conference, after much buttonholing and canvassing of the possibilities of the balloting in the convention, put themselves on record by declaring one after another a preference for Gorman or a willingness to unite in his support.

When the patient manipulation and infinite tact of the leaders in the caucus had been finally crowned with due reward, adjournment was at once taken, subject to call. The net result, if the pledges made are carried out, was the corralling of exactly 42 votes for Gorman on the first ballot.

These votes are to come from Colorado, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona and Wyoming. Those active in the caucus claim that its action will directly influence 30 other votes in different delegations, making a total of 74 Gorman votes as an outcome of the day's work by the silver men.

THE RIOT ACT

Read to Tammany Hall by the New York World.

New York, June 21.—The World (dem.) says editorially this morning:

"The New York delegation to Chicago tied itself with a resolution to support Senator Hill so long as he should be a candidate for the presidency. Senator Hill is not a candidate; but is simply holding the delegation together as a means of beating Mr. Cleveland—now a forlorn and futile hope. The February delegation was elected, primarily and ostensibly, to secure the nomination of Senator Hill; not to prevent in any event the nomination of another New York democrat. The nomination of Mr. Hill has long been seen to be wholly improbable. It is now known to be utterly impossible. Why should the New York delegation lend itself to an effort to thwart the wish of the democracy of the nation and to defeat the one New Yorker who can be nominated? This is not democratic. This is not right. It is not good politics. The claim that Cleveland cannot carry New York is ill-founded. He can carry it if any democrat can. He is stronger in this state than any other man who is named."

CALLED TO ORDER.

The Convention Gets Down to Actual Business.

The Wigwam, Chicago, June 21.—The convention hall was roped in like a gigantic prize ring, and guarded by a strong force of police. It was a muggy, sticky, sweltering Chicago day. The air was so thick with smoke that respiration was difficult. Occasionally the sun struggled through the gloom, only to make more plainly visible the perpetually descending soot flakes. Through these cheerless surroundings the vast crowds forced their way, hedged in by alternate layers of livery stables and huge Chicago office buildings on one side, and by tall bill posters' hoardings, shutting out the view of the lake, on the other side.

Conspicuous painted signs indicated the different sections for which tickets of admission to the wigwam had been issued, and a small army of deputy sergeants-at-arms superintended the process of packing the delegates and spectators into their allotted places. Fully two hours before the time set for the commencement of the proceedings the crowds began to climb the outside stairs and tumbled themselves inside the ugly wooden box much after the way in which Shem, Ham and Japhet, and the little wooden animals, are let down into the toy Noah's ark.

But inside the building the effect of the decorations was lost in the immensity of space, and the depressing obscurity of the opaque atmosphere. The thousands of yards of bunting and the unique collection of papier mache spread eagles, "distemper" portraits of dead heroes, and emblazoned allegories of fame and victory, were barely discernible and their effect was lost in the cavernous depths of almost limitless space.

Yet, notwithstanding the proportions of the preparations made, they were none too great for the crowds which sought to gain admission, or, failing in that, to get a glimpse into the building from the outside.

The constructors of the wigwam declared it would pack 20,000 people standing and seat 19,000.

Apparently these limits were reached, but as for hearing the speeches or discerning the features of the speakers, the great majority of the audience was about as well off as the onlookers at a spectacular exhibition of the "Fall of Babylon."

Nevertheless the discomforts were in great part taken good humoredly, and to be in and to form a part of a great national democratic convention seemed to be soul-satisfying glory enough even for the most exacting.

Tammany for Cleveland.

The New York delegation met at 10:30 and had a long and hot session. It was announced that Mr. Hill's chances had ceased to exist and the statement was made that Mr. Cleveland would undoubtedly be nominated on the first ballot. In an instant Mr. Croker was on his feet advocating Cleveland's nomination. Mr. Murphy, however, backed by Mr. Sheehan and Mr. Ridgeway, said that it would be unworthy of the state to at this time drop its candidate.

A lively time ensued, Mr. Gilroy also insisting on turning down the candidate. Prior to the meeting Mr. Murphy had held a hot argument with Mr. Gilroy over the matter. Gilroy insisted that the attitude of Tammany was being ridiculed. Tammany was for the democratic nominee and Mr. Hill's chances having favored it, should be on the winning side. Mr. Murphy argued that the February convention had specifically instructed delegates to vote for Mr. Hill and it was their duty to do so. The views of Mr. Murphy were sustained at the delegation meeting, but it is alleged that at another meeting to-night the decision may be reversed and Tammany may support Mr. Cleveland.

The Michigan delegation at its meeting this morning re-elected Daniel J. Campau, nationol committeemen, E. F. Uhl a member of the committee on resolutions; E. F. Connolly, on credentials. The delegation agreed to present the name of Judge Morse for vice president. E. H. Uhl will make the nominating speech.

Almost up to the hour of meeting the sound of hammers hurriedly driving the last nails into the woodwork of the galleries echoed through the hall. In the concluding rush a number of the intended decorative effects had to be abandoned and others were materially changed.

The four pillared arch with its towering busts of Andrew Jackson and Stephen A. Douglass, which was to have surmounted the chairman's stand, was unconstructed.

All the platform fittings were somewhat meagre and primitive as compared with those at Minneapolis. The most conspicuous object was a modest mahogany desk bearing in front the inscription in old English text, "Cleveland and Hendricks nominated from this desk, July 11, 1884." This was the chairman's stand. It was flanked on each side by a bunch of roses in a glass pitcher, and a similar bunch with half a dozen laurels in pots stood in front of the secretary's desk immediately below the chairman.

Blue silk banners with the names of the states lettered in gold, marked the positions of the delegates.

As much as $20 a seat was asked for front seats in the gallery and they were filled up very slowly at these rates.

Pennsylvania entered late with a banner so much larger than any of the other states that cries of "pull it down," "take a reef in it," were raised.

Directly afterwards a rain and thunder storm arose, rendering necessary the lowering of the canvas around the air and light spaces under the roof. The almost cimmerian darkness thus produced made the Chicago convention at midday as gloomy for the time being as the Minneapolis gathering was at midnight when the electric lights were shut off.

Notwithstanding the canvas protection the rain beat in and umbrellas were freely raised in the galleries which were not half full. Occasional bright flashes of lightning lit up the hall. It was a welcome relief and was hailed with cheers when the band in the gallery back of the chairman, at 12:15, struck up a lively air.

The storm was not of long duration. In ten minutes the hall began to brighten and five minutes later the sun was out again. The hastily constructed roof, however, had begun to leak, and some of the accumulated water dripped in on the New York delegation. One of the delegates raised an umbrella over Gov. Flower, and it shed its drippings on the Tammanyites around him.

At the conclusion of the prayer, Chairman Brice said:

"Gentlemen of the Convention: By direction of the national committee, the chair presents to this convention as its temporary officers the gentlemen named in the following list which the secretary will read:

Hon. W. C. Owens, of Kentucky, temporary chairman.

Secretary—S. P. Sheerin, Indiana.

Assistant Secretaries—W. H. Doyle, Pennsylvania; H. Shepard, Virginia; C. Tilley, Missouri; L. A. Rawley, Michigan; R. E. Wilson, Mississippi; C. R. DeFreest, New York; J. C. Swayne, Illinois;

Principal reading clerk—Hon. Nicholas M. Ball.

Official stenographer—Edward Dickinson, New York.

The list was adopted without opposition and the chair appointed the following committee to escort the temporary chairman to the platform: Adlai E. Stevenson, Illinois; C. S. Jewett of Indiana, and Thomas Wilson of Minnesota.

These gentlemen assembled in front of the platform and then proceeded down one of the side aisles to the place where the Kentucky delegation sat.

Mr. Owen arose and walked up the aisle with the committee. When they appeared on the platform the convention applauded and the applause was renewed when Chairman Brice announced that he had the "honor and pleasure" of presenting to the convention its temporary chairman.

Mr. Brice retired, leaving the space in front of the chairman's desk to Mr. Owen. The chairman said:

CHAIRMAN OWENS.

Splendid Speech of the Kentuckian in Opening the Convention

Chicago, June 21.—Two great danger menace the democracy. One is external the other internal. The first is the organized machinery of organized capital, supported by the whole power of the government. The second is a tendency among democrats to make issues among themselves.

Two needs therefore stand before us indispensable to success—unity and harmony. Of the one this chair and gavel stand representative; it remains for you to supply the other. (Applause).

In this spirit I greet you, fellow democrats, as the advance guard of a grand army, sent forth to blaze a pathway to victory. How momentous is your responsibility I need not tell you.

If your work be done in wisdom the millions toiling in mine and shop and field will rise and call you blessed. (Cheers.)

The roll call of the republic attests that its heart and its conscience are with us, in our war with the representatives of greed. The best thought of our party is a platform that challenges the approbation and invites the support of the people.

We can succeed—we must do more; we must deserve success. Above the wreck, if need be, of selfish combinations, we must rear a temple to the plain people, and build a shrine so broad that there every lover of his kind may kneel. (Uproarous applause.)

The burden must be lifted from the back of labor, and to that end it has a right to demand that whoever bears our banner must lift it above the smoke of conflict and the din of faction; that every democrat of the union may follow its lead in exultant and irresistible combat. Let us make no mistake. The gravity of the situation demands the broadest patriotism and every needful sacrifice. (Cheers.)

Our work but begins here. Under the suns of summer and the frosts of autumn we must carry it forward with unfaltering courage to a triumphant close. This again must be a campaign of education. The "study of the cornfield" begun in the west and south must be carried into every hamlet of the east and north. The people must learn their true relation to the tax gatherer. They must learn that no railroad presidents champion the tribunes of the people; that no task masters write our tariff bills (tremendous applause).

They must learn, too, that for personal and political advantage, their country was menaced by the threat of war, and they will learn with shame and regret that the very day the warlike proclamation of their president was read in the halls of congress, the peaceful response of the little eight by ten republic of Chile, accepting the terms of the presidential ultimatum, was read in every capital of the world. (Laughter.)

Our opponents must be measured by their deeds and not by their professions. The Fifty-first congress wrote the blackest page in our legislative history and became a thing of the past. It challenged the approval of the people and they responded in tone so portentious that it seemed the voice of God. With a unanimity that finds no parallel in the story of the popular government they determined that a billion dollars was far too much to pay for such a museum of freaks. If we permit it, they will stand by their verdict.

That our cause may triumph let us work in kindness. In the heat of contention let us not forget that our political brother may be just as honest, and perhaps better informed. Impelled by one purpose and that purpose the public good, we will free ourselves from the bickerings and heartburnings that characterized the republican party, when its Marshall Ney went down at Minneapolis before the mailed legions of the bread and butter brigade. (Applause lasting fully ten minutes.)

Mr. Owen had a respectful and an interesting hearing and there was great enthusiasm over his remarks when he came to the "legions of the bread and butter brigade." The convention cheered again and again.

The chairman asked what the pleasure of the convention was.

Mr. White, of California, got the floor and offered the a resolution providing that the roll be called to name members of the different committees, and that all resolutions relating to the platform be referred to the committee on resolutions without debate, and that the credentials of such delegates be delivered by each delegation to the committee on credentials.

Gen. Bragg, of Wisconsin, from the front row offered as an amendment that the rules of the last democratic convention govern this body until otherwise ordered.

Mr. White accepted this amendment as being first in order and temporarily withdrew his resolution, which he again offered after Gen. Bragg's substitute was passed. It was read by Reading Clerk Bell.

Mr. Rhodes of [illegible]ama, interposed with an amendment which was read. It provided for a committee on rules in addition to the thee committees. There was a brief discussion of the amendment, the explanation being made that the original resolution delegated the work of the proposed committee to the committee on permanent organization.

The amendment was adopted, however, and the resolution as amended went through.

The clerk then read the roll call and the chairman of each delegation handed in or announced the names to the chair.

A LADY ADVISES LADIES

I know a charming lady who knows more beautiful and attractive women than any other lady in this city. In conversation recently, she said: "I often feel very sorry when I see so many beautiful women so delicate, and suffering so much, and I have often asked myself what the reason is? I think ladies do not exercise the proper care. They do not eat nourishing food, they are careless of their feet, their necks, their chests. In this way they open the door for diseases and those thousands of troubles which so often afflict womankind, but worse than all they allow their life and strength to run down to a low ebb. How many women we see constantly in this condition. They need help, they need something to depend upon, something that will assist them, some friend in need. I know this, largely, from my own experience for I was once in the same condition myself. I thought the matter over carefully, and decided what I would do. I knew I needed a gentle, constant stimulant, something that would assist my vital forces, keep my blood throbbing and act as a tonic. I decided to try Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and its effect has been simply wonderful. I do not know what pains, sickness or weakness are and I am satisfied ladies generally could be in the same happy condition by a proper use of the same means."

This lady's remarks are entitled to the greatest consideration, for they are an indication of what hundreds of ladies have found to be a necessity. It should be borne in mind, however, that it is only pure whiskey which should ever be used, and that Duffy's Pure Malt is the only one which receives the endorsement of scientists and the recommendations of physicians. Do not allow any druggist or grocer to induce you to take any other.

TAMMANY'S LEVEL HEAD.

You May See the Tiger Roaring for Cleveland by To-morrow.

Chicago, June 21.—For all their vigorous denunciation of Cleveland and vehement support of David B. Hill, the Tammanyites are casting about for something, it doesn't matter much what, which will let them down easily. When they came into the west, with their only knowledge of the national situation gleaned from the survey of New York state, they announced themselves as for Hill and against Cleveland first, last, and all the time.

There was to them no such possibility as the nomination of the ex-president and, supremely contented and confident that the country would speedily recognize the strength of their claims, they cast no anchor to windward.

Hence, once more Tammany finds itself in an awkward predicament. Murphy, Croker, Sheehan, and the rest of the heavyweights of the New York delegation have gone too far in their campaign to retreat gracefully, and yet if they do not recede from the position originally taken they will suffer an ignominious defeat.

For these reasons they began casting about for a western man, but none of the favorite sons seemingly had strength enough to make a vigorous fight against Cleveland. That scheme would never work, and Grover's popularity was growing so rapidly and his strength increasing so fast that some other plan had to be devised and that at once, and right here the Cleveland leaders came to the relief of the Hill managers.

For all their confidence as publicly expressed, Whitney, Dickinson, et al. were plainly cognizant of the fact that a majoirty of votes was not a two-thirds poll. Again, the fact that their man hadn't a vote in the New York delegation, and would not have if the latter stuck to its colors, which would be liable to weaken his support when the balloting began, led to their staightway beginning to make overtures to the other side to see if a compromise could not be arranged. The leaders of both candidates went into executive session and the conference lasted for hours. Croker, although as silent as the grave when in public, explained his views at length, yet wasted no word in doing so. Murphy chimed in frequently in support of his colleague and after they had concluded Whitney had his say.

The proposition of the Tammanyites was that the strength of the two candidates should be so divided in the convention that Cleveland would not be nominated for several ballots, and that when the decisive moment had arrived the New York delegation should plump its 72 votes for Grover Cleveland, and in such a manner that it would have the honor of nominating Cleveland.

Second, Tammany was to name the vice-president, a western man. These propositions were agreed to by the Cleveland men, for they were the victors and could afford to be generous with the enemy.

It was on the final proposition that they kicked, and that was that there should be but one democratic organization in New York state and that under the rule of Tammany hall. The Cleveland men wanted the old order of things and desired the city and state democracy to work on their own individual lines and not as one body.

Tammany had conceded too much already and did not intend to give up the only hope it had to snatch a few laurels from the conference. Neither side would yield the point and the meeting broke up with matters as regarding the two factions still in a chaotic state. This may be the cause of overthrowing the entire arrangements. Another conference will be held, but unless Whitney makes the concession the Hill-Cleveland fight will go on.

AMERICAN INSTITUTIONS.

The National League Presents Some Resolutions

Chicago, June 21.—The following resolution from the National League for the Protection of American Institutions will be presented to the convention to-day and referred to the committee on resolutions:

No state shall pass any law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or use its property or credit or any money raised by taxation, or authorize either to be used, for the purpose of founding, maintaining, or aiding, by appropriation, payment for services, expenses, or otherwise, any church, religious denomination or religious society, or any institution, society, or undertaking which is wholly or in part under sectarian or ecclesiastical control.

The same appeal was presented to the national republican convention and received recognition in the platform.

THE FAVORITE SONS.

They Dropped Out on the First Don of the Convention

Chicago, June 21.—The democratic national convention on its opening day is far different from the convention held two weeks ago at Minneapolis. The opponents of Mr. Harrison kept up a bold front until the third session of the convention. They claimed even an hour before the nomination was made that they had hopes of success. The men who have been fighting Cleveland most bitterly have given up all hope this morning.

They have even stopped the shouting of their followers in the corridors of the hotels, and the convention opens as tamely almost as the Cleveland ratification meeting at St. Louis four years ago. The Tammany men did not give up the battle until an early hour this morning.

They have not made a formal surrender yet. But as the delegations at their meetings last evening determined one by one to support Cleveland as a unit, the anti-Cleveland cause grew more and more hopeless, and when the news that Illinois had refused to break from its instructions came in about midnight, the battle was over. There had been rays of hope occasionally during the evening. Most of them were clouded though.

Only two favorite sons stayed in the fight uncompromisingly—Hill and Boies.

The other candidacies were all conditional. "If Cleveland is out of the way—" was the cautious introduction of every state as it proclaimed its allegiance to its local leader. Indiana was a unit for Cleveland—"until he should be out of the race," then it was for Gray. Maryland would have delighted to honor its candidate of yesterday—"if Cleveland should be out of the race." But second choice candidates were at a discount this morning. Mr. Gorman's friends were doing all they could last night and again to-day to convince the delegates and the country that he had never been a candidate. Senator Gibson, his spokesman, gave out an interview saying Mr. Gorman had never been in the field. No one to-day is anxious for the doubtful honor of being beaten on the first ballot except New York and Iowa. They stand to their colors and will stand to them until the battle is fought and won.

TARIFF AND SILVER.

What the Live Planks in the Platform Will Say.

Chicago, June 21.—(Special)—The selection of Larry Neal to be the Ohio committeeman on resolutions is a compliment which is especially gratifying to tariff reformers, as it will be remembered that he was a member of the same committee at the national convention in 1888, and wrote the tariff plank of the platform of that convention.

In committee this year Mr. Neal will insist upon the plain, unequivocal plank, "a tariff for revenue only." Mr. Neal is also prepared with a silver plank which ought to be a winner.

The Bee is favored by Mr. Neal with a copy of it, which is as follows:

"We favor the unlimited coinage of both gold and silver, but insist that the ratio between the gold and silver shall be so adjusted and maintained by law as to make the one equal in value to the other."

THEY WERE BAPTIZED.

A Rain Storm Poured Through the Wigwam Roof.

Chicago, June 21.—(Special)—Delegates and spectators were beautifully baptized in the Cleveland faith at the opening of the first session.

The roof of the convention store box leaked like a sieve, but the ardor of the boys was not dampened by the rain.

There is more democracy to the square foot on the lake front to-day than ever was seen before.

The procession is well under way, and with banners and bands it will stir up the voters until November.

THE SILVER MEN.

They are Working Hard After Their Point.

Chicago, June 21.—The delegates from the western states held a caucus this morning to adopt the form of a silver plank that shall be satisfactory to the states particularly interested, including territories, all except New Mexico being represented. Previous to the meeting the committee appointed last night met and adopted the form of a resolution for submission to the caucus. This committee was composed of Messrs. O'Donnell of Colorado; Johnson of Idaho; Clark of Montana; Beckwith of Wyoming, and Henderson and Kressell of Utah. (One from each of the contesting delegations).

The committees were reading for the caucus at 10:30. Mr. Cowen, chairman of the Montana state committee presided and Mr. Clark presented the result of the committee's labors.

The resolution was discussed 20 minutes and then two resolutions were adopted to include the views of the caucus. These resolutions, it was decided by formal vote, to keep from the press, and all requests for copies, or for statements of the substance of them were refused by the delegates. They were referred to the members of the committee on resolutions, from the states and territories represented in the caucus, to be presented to the committee for its consideration.

The two resolutions, it is believed, contain one, a demand for the unlimited free coinage of silver, and the other, a demand for the coinage of the product of the American mines. This latter is to be urged in case the first does not receive the support of a majority of the committee on resolutions. One of the delegates said the resolutions were so plain and distinct that not even Grover Cleveland could make more than one meaning out of them."

CHEERS FOR CAMPBELL.

Popular Jimmy is Well Received Wherever He Goes.

Chicago, June 21.—(Special)—The first distinguished democrat to be received with generous applause was Gov. Campbell as he entered the convention. Popular Jimmy is well received everywhere.

TOLD IN THE BULLETINS.

What the Wires Brought in the Hurry of the Opening Hour

Chicago, June 21.—11:40—Anti-Cleveland element of Illinois delegation decided this morning to challenge the right of the chairman to vote the delegates as a unit in accordance with precedent set by New York in 1884 when names of those voting in minority were announced.

12:25—Senator Brice appears on the platform just as the sun beams into the hall. Both events are recognized by rounds of cheers.

12:30—All the delegates are seated; not more than half of the spectators' quarters are filled. There are cries of "time" from the balcony.

12:32—Majority of the Michigan delegation enters the hall, bearing aloft a magnificent white banner. They receive hearty welcome from other delegations.

12:40—Brice still not ready to proceed. Band renders selection from Tannehauser, followed by waltz medley.

12:43—Brice raps for order. There was hardly a man in the galleries who had not his coat off and some of them had divested themselves of collars and vests also. A flutter of fans gave a tremendous motion to the air.

12:43—Ex-Gov. Campbell arrives; as soon as recognized great cheering and cries of "Campbell!" from all over auditorium.

12:43—Brice raps for order.

12:45—Rouse prays that all bitterness and malice and wrath and evil speaking of each other be put away by delegates.

12:48—Chairman Brice presents the list of temporary officers; W. C. Owens' name name as temporary chairman is received with cheers.

12:49—Chairman Owens delivers his address.

1:56—Convention adjourned to 11 o'clock to-morrow morning.

BILLY SCHOONMAKER

Suffers From Sunstroke—In Good Shape To-Day.

About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon William Schoonmaker, a mail carrier, was suddenly overcome with heat, and fell to the street while in the act of boarding a Robison car on Jefferson street, near Summit. He had covered his route in a hurry to keep an appointment, and the over-exertion in the hot sun proved too much for his constitution. He was slightly injured in the fall, but otherwise he is all right.

TO LEAVE FOR AFRICA.

Tip-o-Tip Has to Start Earlier Than He Expected.

Tip-o-Tip, the Zulu prince who has been visiting Toledo for some time past, will leave this week for his home in Zululand. He had expected to sail about the middle of August, but he finds that he couldn't get back in time to go to school, so he has concluded to start at once. He has made enough money to pay his passage over and back, and to take him through the Howard university, Washington, next fall.

ST. FRANCIS DE SALES'

Pupils Acquit Themselves With Credit.

At Wheeler's last evening occurred the annual examination of the scholars of St. Francis de Sales' school, with a large number of the friends and patrons of the school in attendance. The young people answered puzzling questions, solved perplexing problems, and rendered songs and recitations in a pleasing manner. At the close of the program Rev. Dr. Quigley addressed the pupils, congratulating them on their good work, and giving good advice and counsel for the future.

CLAIR ADAMS

Handsomely Remembered by Fellow Y. P. S. C. E's.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Third Presbyterian church met last evening at the home of Mrs. H. C. Nicholas, 619 Colburn street. One of the happy features of the evening was the presentation to Mr. Clair Adams of a letter with leave of absence from Brown, Eager & Hull and $30 in cash from the society, with which to pay his expenses as a delegate to the Y. P. S. C. E. convention to be held in New York July 5. It is almost unnecessary to say that Mr. Adams was highly pleased with this exhibition of appreciation on the part of his associates and expressed his thanks, forcibly.

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION

And Rally to be Held at the First Congregational Church To-morrow.

A non-partisan W. C. T. U. rally and convention will be held at the First Congregational church to-morrow, lasting all day. The meeting is largely for the purpose of promoting the cause of this organization in Toledo, and the business of the day will be to that end.

The national president, Mrs. Phinney, arrived here to-day and will attend the meetings. She will be given a reception in the church from 4:30 to 6 p. m., and in the evening she will address the mass meeting to be held at 8 o'clock, to attend which all temperance workers are invited.

CUSHING'S SALE.

Splendid Weather and Everything Else O. K. for Success.

This is the day of H. H. Cushing's special sale of Leap Year addition lots. The weather is perfect, and Mr. Cushing has made ample preparations to accommodate the immense crowds that will be in attendance. Mr. Cushing has spared no expense to provide for the comfort of all, and a band of music is on the ground to keep the crowds in good humor. The lots are in a most desirable locality, the prices reasonable, and terms within the reach of all.

THE GAS TRUSTEES

Hold a Short and Uninteresting Session.

The board of natural gas trustees held a brief session last evening.

Claims amounting to $600 were ordered paid and a bill of expenses amounting to $27.57 was laid over.

A resolution to the effect that all applications from manufacturers for gas be referred to the city plant committee, with power to act, was carried over Mr. Backus' protest.

City Solicitor Reed in a communication approved the board's position on the Maumee rolling mill case.

Secretary Brown reported balance on hand $17,053. Receipts since last meeting, $374.

A NEW ORGANIZATION

That Will Make Recommendations to the Legislature.

A meeting of the new organization, the Toledo Union Temperance association, will be held July 13, at Davis' Business college. At that meeting it is desired to have every church and every church society represented by three delegates. All temperance bodies are also requested to send delegates.

The temperance workers of Toledo have discovered that some such union where they can work as a unit is necessary. It will be to the temperance workers what the Central Labor Union is to the various trades' unions in the city.

At present the membership is about seventy.

Recommendations will be prepared touching the saloon question and presented to the legislature next fall. Quarterly meetings will be held by the association.

JOHN WAS THERE.

The Sweet Singer of Oberlin on Deck Once More.

It will be remembered that one year ago John Gunckel, of the Lake Shore, went to Oberlin and by singing in the choruses with the students he got on the inside and sold them their railroad tickets, thus fooling the other railroad men and gaining for himself the sobriquet, the Sweet Singer of Oberlin.

This year John will fool the railroad men once more. When they go to Oberlin at commencement time they will find the 1,600 students all with their little tickets in their inside pockets, for the sweet singer went down last week and fixed it all up beforehand. Tommy Clarke, of the Rock Island, was there also under Mr. Gunckel's direction, and he made an address to the students, telling them how his road was the shortest between any two points they could mention. It was a great combination. Mr. Gunckel says he is going to give Mr. Clarke singing lessons, and next season they will do duet work.

MR. GITSKEY FAILING.

The Fall from His Bicycle Will Prove Fatal.

Dr. Becker, who is attending Mr. Gitskey, fears that he will not live but a few hours longer. It will be remembered he fell from his bicycle a few days since and was run onto by a horse.

EARLY MORNING FIRE

In Which Two Men Are Overcome by the Smoke.

Shortly after 3 o'clock this morning fire broke out in the three-story building occupied as a restaurant by George McWha, on Summit street, between Jefferson and Monroe. A number of people sleep in the building. The ladies got out scantily attired and two men, George McWha and Miner Butler, went back on the third floor to get the clothes the women had left in their hasty departure. The smoke rolled into the rooms in dense black volumes and the two men were nearly suffocated. They were dragged out of the third story window by the firemen. They are all right to-day. The fire started on the second floor, but just how is not known.

TOLEDO MEDICAL COLLEGE.

Factional Fight and the Annual Meeting Yesterday.

Yeserday was the annual meeting of the Toledo Medical college and the factions were on hand.

President D. R. Austin occupied the chair and the annual reports of the officers were presented and approved without much comment.

The committee appointed to report a new faculty was not ready to make its final report. A majority of the directors, it seems, favors getting rid of Dr. Havighorst, but he proposes staying right where he is, and hence the row.

The election of directors was postponed for one week, and it is expected there will be music in the air at the next meeting.

WHITING SONG RECITAL

At the First Congregational Church—Large Attendance.

The vocal recital given by Mr. Whiting and pupils last evening, was thoroughly delightful, as are all musical events under Prof. Whiting's direction. Miss Doolittle, with her accustomed grace and ease, charmed her audience. Miss Pratt is a young vocalist whose beautiful voice promises much for the future. The singing of Mrs. Dorr, of Fremont, was quite beyond criticism in both voice and method. Miss Margaret Everiss, of Adrian, Mich., has a sweet, rich voice; her rendition of Meyerbeer's "Robert, Idol of My Heart," was very satisfactory. The quartets and duos were of a high order of merit. Mrs. Jipson, of Blissfield; Mrs. Allen, Misses Pratt, Parmelee and Reasner; Messrs. Buckout, Richmond and Stouch were other performers who sang well and received many compliments. Mr. Willet has a voice of pleasing quality, and his execution is good. His numbers were among the best. Mr. Garn sang well, as he always does. Miss Whiting is an ideal accompanist, sympathizing entirely with the voice, in her playing. Mrs. Johnson, of Adrian, and Mrs. Ainsworth, were both indisposed and unable to appear. Miss Buck gave a song in Mrs. Ainsworth's stead, which was much appreciated. The attendance was a large and attentive one.

FUN AT THE PEOPLE'S

Ten Hypnotized Men Furnished the Entertainment.

The People's theater was crowded last night to witness the mesmeric exhibition given by Dr. Flint. Ten persons went upon the platform, and were hypnotized in less time than it takes to tell it. They sang songs, drove race horses, talked through the telephone, ran a barber shop, and one boy, having been informed by Dr. Flint that he must prepare a corn salve for sale, and explain its merits, at once entered into a lengthy speech, and finally prevailed on one of the other subjects to have a corn removed. The man took off his shoe and stocking, and just as the "corn doctor" was about to amputate a toe, Dr. Flint snapped his fingers, and they realized their ludicrous condition. The most wonderful illustration of the doctor's hypnotic power, is the way he controls the muscles of his subjects. A few passes over a man's body and his limbs become rigid. He was stretched out on two chairs, his head on one chair and feet on the other, and five men, including the doctor, whose weight is 250 pounds, sat on his body. The doctor prefaced the performance with a brief speech in which he stated that insane persons or idiots are not subject to mesmeric influences.

RUN DOWN

By an Electric Car on Erie Street.

A Vehicle Upset and the Occupants Injured.

Another street railway accident that is likely to prove serious occurred this afternoon on Erie street near the gas works. Shortly before 2 o'clock Mr. Elmer Foster, of the People's Outfitting company, with one of the firm's drivers was riding in a light wagon at the place mentioned when Consolidated electric car No. 185 came up behind them. They endeavored to get out of the way, as they were in the track, but the car struck their vehicle before they could do so.

The car instead of stopping, however, continued running and pushing the wagon before it until it upset, throwing the occupants violently to the ground. Mr. Foster was very badly injured.

The motor man in charge of the car was numbered 271, name not known. Witnesses who saw the accident state that the car could have been stopped in time to avoid a collision. After the vehicle was struck the motor man continued to go ahead and did not stop until the fall of Mr. Fisher brought him to his senses. Fisher was taken to the police station in the patrol. Dr. Becker was called, and on making an examination found that the unfortunate man's back was injured and his body badly bruised. The doctor thinks he will pull through all right. The accident was wholly uncalled for, say those who witnessed it.

WAS IT SECOND SIGHT?

Strange Premonition of a Gallant Captain's Baby Boy.

Among the many curious instances of seeming second-sight may be placed the following incident of that saddest tragedy of modern days—the death of Custar and his gallant followers:

The love existing between Captain Blank and his blue-eyed and golden-curled boy, little "Buster," the pet and darling of the whole garrison, was something to be remembered. Wherever the tall soldiery figue of the young father was to be seen, unless on duty, that of the child was sure to be close beside, sometimes riding on his father's shoulder, sometimes clinging to his hand always lifting to his, eyes full of passionate love and content.

When the dreaded day came that was to separate those fearless men from the women and children who so loved them, Buster could hardly be torn from his father, and my husband told me that long after, the child's shriek of utter misery, unchildlike in its intensity, rang in his ears. For some days after the command had marched across the low purple hills, out of the reach of loving eyes, Buster drooped and pined; but he was a child, and the old childish gayety came back to his eyes, and his laugh, which rang out as happily as ever, almost jarring upon his young mother's ear.

One warm day at Fort Lincoln Mrs. Blank sat sewing in her tiny parlor, her baby creeping about the floor at her feet, while she chatted with two or three more lonely wives, perhaps of the beloved ones far off across the plains and their possiible return. Suddenly Buster rushed in through the open door, eyes sparkling, hair flying.

"Mamma," he shouted, "my papa's s'ooting his 'volver! I heard him!"

"Did you, darling?" his young mother said, stooping to kiss the little flushed, eager face. "How very nice! I wish he could come home and s'oot it. Don't you?"

"He's s'ooting Indians," the child went on; "and he'll s'oot 'em all, and zen he'll tome home."

"I'm sure I hope he will," sighed Mrs. Blank. "Run out and play, Buster, and don't go in the sun."

"How Buster does talk about his father!" some remarked. "I often meet him running along with some one, and, child or man, soldier or officer, you can always catch the words 'my papa' if you listen to him."

Then the talk wandered on, alawys in a minor key, for there had been quite an interval of time since the last letters, and there was always unacknowledged anxiety, though all felt unbounded faith in the powers of the gallant Seventh.

Presently the sound of a child's bitter crying brought them all to their feet, and Buster ran into his mother's arms at the door, sobbing wildly:

"Mamma," he sobbed, "the Injuns has dot my papa. He's dot no more s'oots in his 'volver; he's s'ooted it all. Oh, I want my papa, and the bad Injuns has dot him!"

Mrs. Blank knelt down on the floor beside her boy, drawing him close to her heart. "Hush, Buster," she said, very gently, but firmly, "you must not be such a silly little boy; the Injuns can't get your papa. General Custer is there; he will take care of papa, and all the men. Do you think F Troop would let the Injuns get papa? See, you are making us all feel very bad, and papa would say that you were not his brave little lad. Now stop crying and go and play; you could not hear papa's 'volver so far away."

"Yes," the child exclaimed, earnestly, "I tan hear my papa's 'volver, and I know he's s'ooted it all!" But army discipline prevailed, and the boy choked back his sobs, nestling in his mother's arms and resting there, strangely quiet, for the rest of the long summer day.

That evening, when the cildren were both sleeping, and the daily bulletin to her absent husband had been written, Mrs. Blank sat for some moments in silent thought, then drawing a sheet of paper to her wrote down the date, June 26th, and poured out to her only brother the aching of her heart and the senseless anxiety caused by the child's foolish words, memory of which still stirred him in his sleep, for he sobbed and tossed all night.

On the 6th of July, when the whole army writhed and cried out its agony at the news that had come to us, we, to whom Mr. B. had shown his sister's letter, knew that on the 26th of June Captain Blank had dearly sold his life, and had been found pierced with many wounds, his empty revolver clasped in his stiffened hand. And far away, in his quiet home, his baby boy had seemed to know it.—Kate Woodbridge Michaels, in Harper's Bazar.

"George!" shouted the fond wife to her lord, who had just gone down stairs on Sunday morning. "I am almost frozen; I wish you'd start the furnace up again."

"What! Spend an hour on the furnace and get my throat full of dust to make a fire in blossom time?"

"That's just it," responded his wife, with chattering teeth.

"Al right," he shouted in a cast-iron rage, as he descended the cellar steps to chop up a barrel and get a series of splinters in his eyes.

He hadn't been at work more than five minutes when he heard his wife shout to the cook:

"Bridget?"

"Well, mum?"

"Have the Dingwells returned our ice cream freezer yet?"

"They have, mum?"

We Never Shrink

From our duty to our customers, consequently the clothing we sell never shrinks on our customers. We prefer to leave a man enough room to laugh in his sleeve if he wants to, and as we wish our customers to grow more we would not sell them clothing that grows less. The best material, therefore, is put in our garment. They are made in the best fashions by the best workmen, and if we don't ask the best prices for them it is because we are more anxious for customers than money. The "Eternal Vigilance."

Perhaps never before in the world's written history, was the money-god more securely throned than it is in this country to-day. Look at the situation: a wonderful country in expanse, rich and fertile in resources, diversified in soil, climate and products, seemingly favored of heaven in natural advantages. Freedom was proclaimed and the republic christened at the baptismal font of patriot blood. A century of wonderful growth and advancement has been rounded. The industry and ingenuity of the people almost surpass belief, if we did not see the results. But, the little beck which Jean Ingelow sang in her "Divided," was stealing its way under cover, slowly widening its banks day by day and all the time, until in this year of our Lord's grace, 1892, the contention of the whole wide country is, how to bridge it over. It is a broad, mighty stream, overflowing its confines and bearing all things that it reaches along on its swift current.

To drop figure of speech, the same spirit of caste that curses the old world: an aristocracy and a common people, prince and peasant, master and slave, the "leisure class" and the toilers who support them—these have been steadily growing, with us and of us. And the foundations of this seemingly inevitable condition of life are becoming firmly fixed. Deftly and adroitly are the coils being wound and tightened, and the beguiled victims assist in the operation. It is, apparently, a little thing they do, but the significance and the influence of it is incalculable. They simply vote for measures that militate against their own interests and place power and money in the hands of their cunning leaders. The wonderful prosperity of the country is trumpeted abroad. The army of half-paid, half-fed laborers are kept out of sight in the glowing picture. It is the old story of human nature. Man's greed and cruelty to his fellows but let him get the upper hand.

The truest sentiment in our political scripture was proclaimed by Jefferson when he said "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." Curran uttered the immortal words in his speech on the rights of elections, in Dublin, in 1790: "the condition upon which God has given liberty to man is eternal vigilance." We have not been watchful; we have been heedless and over-confident. Our riches were so great we would not believe the treasury of the people had a bad and wide-spreading leak in it. The conviction is slowly taking hold, forced home by mortgaged farms, the failure of the laborer to get a fractional share of the benefit of the wealth he produces, the growing number of monopolies, and the magnificence of our multi-millionairs whose lavish use of treasure for the elegancies of life astonishes even old-world royalists. "The people" are coming to understand the unwritten ethics of the money power which dominates this country to-day, through the rule of the republican party, the party of "the aristocracy." The people have forgotten the eternal vigilance, and must engage in a sharp struggle for the supremacy as a reward for their negligence.

Pulpit and Press.

In the conflict of opinion concerning Sunday ball games, our ministerial brethren have been the first ones to lose temper and indulge in indiscriminate denunciation. Because one newspaper of a town gives flippant and would-be funny reports of meetings, is no reason why all should come under condemnation.

The Bee has given more space to the sermons and arguments of the ministers and opponents of Sunday ball playing than it has given to its advocates, twice over. It has given all the news, and, has been fair with its patrons of all shades of opinion. Its reporters, who, supposably, are included in this wholesale accusation of falsehood, have, in some instances, been publicly thanked by the prosecutors for their timely assistance in giving information, which had been gained in their capacity as news-gatherers. It has followed the mayor with demands that he enforce the laws, until public opinion demands their repeal.

The Bee gives more free advertising to church and religious societies, socials, musicals, charity work than any other paper in Toledo, and more free space to church notices, sermons and enterprises than to all other purposes and objects combined. Their committeemen and women come in upon the workers at their busiest time, often, and are always courteously met and their desires given consideration.

A newspaper is a business enterprise. Its mission is to give the news, not to espouse any man's cause especially, or ride any man's hobby. It gives opinions fearlessly when justice and the public good seem to demand it. This is a country of free opinion and free speech. The owners and managers of a newspaper oblige no man to read their journal. The distressed brother who sighed, "Oh, for a public press" can start one of his own, and the Bee will give him hearty welcome into the field. A few months' experience would teach him how much he has to learn and how little he knows about the other fellow's business. The Bee is sorry for this exhibition of injustice and ingratitude. To quarrel with one's aids weakens the influence and progress of any good work.

What Hinders?

What hinders us, secure in the market of our own great population, from successful competition in the markets of the world? What hinders our people, possessing every element of material wealth and endowed with inventive genius and energy unsurpassed, from having again upon the seas a merchant marine flying the flag of our country, and carrying its commerce into every sea and every port?—President Harrison at Bristol, Tenn., June, 1891.

Sure enough, Mr. Harrison, what hinders? Why should anything hinder? Why have we not ships on the sea? Why, with our inventive genius, our industry and our push, haven't we a commanding place in the markets of the world?

Simply because of the eternal tinkering with commercial laws, forcing trade out of its natural channels, boosting this interest and taxing that, at the behest of favored ones, who are thus made rich and powerful, and can afford to pay well for the distinction of being "protected." President Harrison's party has had control of the government for over a quarter of a century, and yet, the leaders who shape its policy are obliged to confess that something "hinders" its prosperity. Education on the subject is becoming so general, the president's question can be answered in almost any community.

The address of temporary Chairman Owens, at the opening of the Chicago convention, published to-day, should be read by every person who delights to hear patriotic sentiment eloquently expressed. It is a platform of principles in itself. It sounds the keynote of the campaign. Those prophets of warfare who saw "a victory for anti-Clevelandites" in Mr. Owens' selection, may hang their discordant harps on the nearest willows. His words breathe the spirit of unity and harmony, the aroma of true democracy and undefiled patriotism. They are an inspiration and a promise, the fulfillment of which is as sure to come as the sun is to shine, if the people are true to themselves and true to the Republic, a country of free men and equal opportunities in deed as well as word.

A New York city "special" man writing to the home paper speaks of Chicago as "out here." Some of those islanders will stray off on the boundless prairies and get lost if there isn't a string attached, (but there is, to most of them).

The only way to settle the Ulster faction seems to be to bridge that stormy channel, annex that country to Scotland, where it belongs, in sentiment, and then give Gladstone room to forge ahead with his home-rule bill.

The Typographical union has a string to pull on the Minneapolis ticket. Every republican newspaper office that isn't true-blue "union" will hear from them.

If Mr. Cleveland should be nominated in spite of you, Mr. Hill, what then? If you perform the Gen. Gibson-of-Ohio act and do it now, you will win laurels that are not for you in any other possible event.

From the sound of various ratification meetings, the "vice" seems to be "in it" this time. At Rochester the name of Harrison wasn't mentioned.

There is no Hill boom any more, it is an anti-Cleveland struggle.

CURRENT COMMENTS.

The idea that strong Cleveland supporters like Russell, Pattison, Palmer, Carlisle and Campbell will be deluded into participation in the "favorite son" act to please Hill and his disgruntled followers is too ridiculous for consideration.—Atlanta Journal.

The New York delegates to Chicago should think twice before they attempt to stem the Cleveland tide, or assume to thwart the practically unanimous demands of the national democracy. Let them ponder the responsibility with which they would load themselves, and the unenviable plight in which party disaster—if such should be the consequence—would leave them.—Syracuse Courier.

The supreme court of Michigan has affirmed the constitutionality of the law providing for the choice of presidential electors by congressional districts, as everybody having any knowledge of constitutional law supposed it would. It is a republican court, and the movement to have the law declared void was instituted by the republican state organization, but the judges appear to have followed the law rather than their political predilections in considering this case.—Boston Herald.

To say that Mr. Cleveland would not be a strong candidate is to say that the democracy does not pride honesty, sincerity and courage. It is to say that the cause of tariff reform and honest and economical government, which triumphed greatly in the elections of 1890 and again last year, is not strong enough to elect its most conspicuous champion. Can a party that is afraid of its principles win? Does it deserve to win? The undemocratic attempt of one delegation to bulldoze the convention ought to cease.—New York World.

There has never been any doubt of the constitutionality of the law passed in Michigan providing for the election of presidential electors by districts, instead of by general ticket. The supreme court of Michigan has affirmed its validity. A return to the method of choice in all the states would be a great improvement upon the inequalities and unfairness of the present system, which sometimes works so inequitably as to turn the presidential office over to the candidate who has received less than a majority of the popular vote.—Philadelphia Record.

The appeal of the Michigan electoral case to the supreme court of the United States after the law had been unanimously declared valid by the Michigan supreme court looks as if the republican managers were casting an anchor windwaard with a view to saving themselves, if necessary, by another disputed presidential election. But the eight by seven trick that seated Hayes in 1877 will not work this year. If the democrats elect the Chicago nominee by deciding votes from Michigan he will go into the white house on the 4th of March next.—St. Louis Republic.

The great event of the republican convention is less the nomination of the president than the final defeat of Mr. Blaine. At the same moment he loses his chance for the presidency and his public career ends. Eight years ago he was nominated amid immense acclamation, but also immense doubt. The next morning a breach in the party began, and it deepened and widened until he was defeated at the polls. It was a peculiar defeat, because it was personal and not political; that is to say, it was determined not by a change of political views upon the part of the republican dissidents, but by a conviction that he had practically abused official opportunities. A nomination and an election eight years later he might have regarded as a reversal of that verdict. But now he will appear in our history as a man who broke the line of successful republican candidates for the presidency which began with Abraham Lincoln and was resumed after Blaine's defeat.—Harper's Weekly.

GETTING IN LINE

To Fight the Evils Prevailing in a Great City.

Gambling Dens are on the List First,

Then the Open Saloon Must be Closed—Result of the Deliberations at the C. C. Church Last Night.

The ministers and laymen who have taken up the work of enforcing the Sunday observance and suppressing crime met last evening at the Central Congregational church.

Inasmuch as Sunday base ball had been stopped, it was decided to go ahead with the work and close up all the gambling places permanently and all the saloons on Sunday.

The preachers took occasion to score the newspapers for printing the news. Rev. S. G. Anderson, in his remarks said that the Blade had no more idea of fairness than the man in the moon. "It is never just and fair," he said, "it never wants to be. The report of the police court matter was a wholesale misstatement of facts—a deliberate falsehood. The other papers were equally incorrect. Oh, that we had a public press—we have no public press."

The other pastors had a word to say about the press, entirely forgetting that the newspapers in their local columns give the plain news in the matter without comment. If comment is made it would probably be through the proper channel, editorially.

Mayor Emmick received many a dig during the meeting. The pastors did not know how his honor stood and didn't think he knew himself. They thought he would do his duty if they punched him up, and if he didn't, why then they'd make him.

Rev. S. G. Anderson, of the committee appointed to subdue Sunday ball, made his report as follows:

"In going about soliciting money and support in the matter of suppressing Sunday ball we at first found many who thought base ball wasn't so bad after all. They told us we had better be in better business. One prominent attorney remarked to me that we had better attack the greater evils. 'The preachers are spoiling for a fight,' he said, 'and afraid to tackle the larger evils. They kick the small boy.'

"We have kicked the small boy, but we shouldn't stop there. I don't think we ever intended to stop. We will push the work forward as we have commenced.

"If Mayor Emmick don't help us the best thing we could do would be to remove him from office. We thought of impeaching him, but found that it probably wouldn't have worked. He would have posed as a martyr, the newspapers would flop as they always do, and we would be laughed at. I think Mayor Emmick has already been impeached at the bar of his own conscience and in the minds of all good people. That is enough punishment.

"When the mayor and the police commissioners signed the last order for Chief Raitz to arrest the ball players, that order read 'the same as last Sunday,' which meant that they would be arrested after they had played eight innings. I was much astonished that Mayor Emmick would sign such an order after what he had said to us.

"I went to the mayor and asked him if he did such a thing, and if he knew what he was signing.

"He said he didn't know.

"I asked him why he signed an order that allowed men to play eight innings in direct violation to the law.

"He said he didn't know.

"I told him he should have known, and also that he had better be careful how he signed papers in the future.

"In regard to what Mr. Gunnels said to us in court—well, I expected we would be insulted and abused. Mr. Ritchie threw slurs at us as well.

"To continue, Chief Raitz has made out a list of all the gambling houses in the city and is willing to take up the work of reform on that line.

"I would suggest that we direct our efforts at the gambling dens next. I believe in taking up one thing at a time. We can get what we want I am sure. Our committees should be made up of laymen. Let the ministers out. They will have our support.

"The committee should snoop around in these gambling places, get evidence and report to the chief, then if he don't close them, let him know that we will."

C. O. Brigham, chairman of the meeting said: "A well known railroad detective has told me that there is one building in Toledo where several floors are devoted to gambling. It is furnished like a palace, brilliantly lighted, and every night there are gathered there some 300 young men averaging 20 years of age. There are many other places, and this detective will aid us in every way to secure evidence. He has promised me that."

Rev. Fisher suggested that inasmuch as the saloons were all of them open every Sunday in direct violation of the law, that the matter of closing them be taken up in connection with the gambling dens. The mayor can close them if he wants to.

Rev. P. P. Pope said: "The saloons are open and everybody knows it. Mayor Emmick and the other officials can close them if they want to do it, and they should be made to do so. There are three or four special evils that we should aim to suppress."

Rev. W. W. Williams: "We should take one thing at a time. I don't care which we take, but one thing at a time. We are fighting a many-headed monster. We have cut off one head, but others are still staring us in the face livelier than ever."

J. T. Greer: "When you tackle the saloon you are tackling rich men who will make a strong and bitter fight. You had better commence at the outskirts. You must have the aid of the legally constituted authorities of the city with you. If they won't come over, make them."

On motion of A. E. Rood the following committee was appointed to take up the matter of closing the gambling dens and the saloons, to ferret out these places and to stick to the police until they do their duty:

A. E. Rood, L. E. Clark, J. B. Merrill, W. H. Currier and S. G. Anderson.

Funds would be necessary, and the following committee on finance was appointed: E. H. Rhoades, W. H. Whittaker and Wm. Parmalee.

The meeting then adjourned, subject to the call of the committee.

THE COUNCILMEN

Table the Robison Joint Track Ownership Measure,

Adopt a Resolution Favoring Sunday Base Ball, Work Along a Little While, and Then Recess.

The board of councilmen sweltered in their hot room for three hours last evening, and then did not finish the business on the schedule. All members were present except Messrs. Hake, Felker and Walker.

The first business on the calendar was the ordinance requiring a joint reconstruction of the street railway tracks. In this connection a communication was read from the Consolidated Street Railway company asking that this ordinance be not passed as they were all ready to reconstruct the tracks themselves and would do so under the existing laws.

Mr. Gill moved that the ordinance be laid on the table, and this motion was seconded by Mr. Manchester.

Mr. Lee spoke in favor of the ordinance, while Messrs. Neuendorf and Manchester opposed it. When the vote came Mr. Gill's motion, to table, prevailed, ayes, Daly, Doner, Gill, Manchester, Neuendorf, Rutherford, Schmuhl, Swain, Tanner, Taylor, Coleman, 11; noes, Lee, Miller, Morris, Schmidt, 4.

The ordinance providing that no street cars shall pass on a curve, and that not more than one car shall be on any bridge except the Cherry street bridge, passed one reading, but the rules were not suspended.

On the call for new business Mr. Gill presented a petition from Mr. Gunnells, asking that the ordinance prohibiting the playing of base ball on Sunday be repealed.

A resolution to that effect was then adopted by a vote of 11 to 4, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Morris suggested that the council could not repeal a state statute and City Solicitor Read stated that their resolution was of no effect as it required an ordinance to repeal an ordinance. The resolution, however, served to place the councilmen on record as favoring Sunday base ball, and the vote was as follows: Ayes—Daly, Doner, Gill, Miller, Neuendorf, Rutherford, Schmidt, Schmuhl, Tanner, Taylor, Coleman; noes—Lee, Manchester, Morris, Swain.

Mr. Bee presented a petition asking that the hollow in the vicinity of Union and Oak streets be drained of stagnant water. Referred to the board of health.

Mr. Manchester presented a resolution to remove the city pound from Western avenue to some more remote location. This was adopted.

Mr. Miller presented resolutions to pave Eagle lane from Magnolia street to Bush, and to build a sewer in the alley between Summit avenue and Erie streets from Ohio street to Galena street. These were referred to the committees.

Mr. Rutherford presented two resolutions for new sewers, which were referred, and he also presented an ordinance providing for the appointment of two supervisors of excavations, to be under the city engineer. This ordinance passed one reading, but the rules were not suspended for further reading.

A resolution from Mr. Swain was adopted directing the chief of police to enforce the ordinance against hauling dirt over the streets in open wagons.

A resolution was also adopted to pave Nineteenth street from Monroe to Dorr street.

Under unfinished business the ordinance granting to the Pluto Oil Co. the right to construct an oil pipe line was taken up. On motion of Mr. Gill it was tabled by a vote of 10 to 5.

The ordinance increasing the price of hucksters' licenses from $20 to $70 was passed after some discussion.

The ordinance to pave Fulton street was lost.

The resolution to appropriate and condemn several lots in lower town for park purposes was unanimously adopted.

Considerable business from the committees on streets, sewers and judiciary was passed.

The annual message of the mayor was presented, and it is printed in another column of the Bee.

Mayor Emmick also returned with his veto the resolution to purchase sites for three new engine houses and to construct a sewer in Page street.

The business from the board of aldermen was not finished, but the council recessed until this evening, when the work will be finished.

NEW RAILROAD PROJECT.

A Direct Line Into the Iron Districts of Wisconsin.

Wisconsin Capitalists in the City To-day in Connection with the Enterprise—The Ann Arbor to be Extended.

There is a gigantic project on foot which if consummated will be of immense value to the manufacturing interests of Toledo, as well as the public in general.

The Ann Arbor railway company owns and operates a line from Toledo to Frankfort, Benzie county, Michigan. Not long ago the company devised a scheme whereby trains of cars could be transported across Lake Michigan. As a result of this plan, the Craig ship yards of Toledo is building three immense boats, aboard of which a whole train, consisting of engine and 24 cars can be shipped, and plied across the lake. The first of these boats will be launched during August and will ply between Frankfort, Michigan, and Kewounee, Kewounee county, Wisconsin. The road controls a line from Kewounee to Green Bay.

A proposition has been submitted to the management of the Ann Arbor by men of wealth, who own extensive interests in the immense coal fields and almost boundless tracts of fine timber of the northern Peninsula, to construct a lie from Green Bay through these immense iron and timber regions. A gentleman connected with the Ann Arbor, who is in authority to speak, informed a Bee that the plan was a most excellent one, and would be acted upon. This will directly connect Toledo with the finest and most productive iron and lumber regions in the country. The direct route will save Toledo iron manufacturers over 30 per cent. on their ore by reason of a difference in transportation.

COMING TO TOLEDO.

Grand Officers of Railroad Employes' Organizations.

They Will Go to Devil's Lake with the Toledo Division of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers.

Quite a number of delegates are booked for Toledo in the persons of Grand Chief Arthur, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; Grand Chief Sargent, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen; Grand Chief Conductor Clark, of the Order of Railroad Conductors; Grand Chief D. G. Ramsey, of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, and the head officer of the Switchmen's Mutual Aid association.

They will be here Saturday, August 13, and will remain several days. The object of their visit will be to attend the big gathering of railroad employes that goes to Devil's Lake, Mich., from Toledo over the C., J. & M., Sunday, August 14, under the auspices of the Toledo division, No. 37, of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers.

This will be one of the largest gatherings of railroad employes ever held in this part of the country. It will be in the nature of a basket picnic, and the visiting officers will deliver addresses appropriate to the occasion.

CYRUS W. FIELD.

His Death at any Moment Would Not be a Surprise.

New York, June 21.—Cyrus W. Field, emanciated almost to a skeleton and suffering from extreme nervous prostration, lies in a critical condition at his summer home near Irvington. He had a very bad spell on Saturday but recovered sufficiently yesterday to take a short drive. The physicians in attendance say that his death at any moment would not surprise them. Mr. Field now weighs only 85 pounds.

A BRAVE MAN SHRINKS.

"How's this? You said you intended to propose to Miss Clamwhooper this evening, and here you are back before 9 o'clock. She surely didn't refuse you?"

"No-o, I didn't propose. I concluded to postpone the question."

"Now, see here, John, if you don't get that girl it's your own fault. The idea of being such a coward. You, who have bravely walked up to the cannon's mouth."

"Y-e-s, but the cannon hadn't been eating onions."—London Tit-Bits.

Three things Col. Elliot F. can do: he can sit in the chair when McKinley speaks, give dinners to clubs and committees, and keep the great bar'l on tap. These are mighty helpful things.

THE SCHOOL MA'AMS

And School Masters Chosen by the Board of Education

To Teach the Young Idea How to Shoot.

Regular Meeting Last Night—Col. Smead and Member Kohn Have a Little Tilt—Proposals for Buildings.

The school board met in regular session last evening.

The superintendent of buildings reported repairs and minor improvements necessary to be placed on the various buildings amounting to about $900. He was instructed to advertise for bids for contracts to make the repairs.

The board then proceeded to open the bids submitted for the construction of a school building at Air Line Junction.

The various contracts were awarded as follows: Rubble stone, George Lichlenmeyer, $640; drain pipe, George O'Neil, $337; cut stone, Geo. O'Neil, $611; brick work, Gorman Bros., $3,270; lath and plaster, George O'Neil, $914; carpenter work, $3,757; painting, P. C. Eichenberg, $436.77; galvanized tin, $1,430; total, $11,776.37.

As to heating and closet apparatus there were two bids submitted, one from I. D. Smead & Co., furnace, $710; closets, $473, and another from Bennet & Peck, of Cincinnati, furnaces, $500; closets, $366.

Mr. Broer stated that the board had used the Smead system ever since it had been invented; that it had always proved successful, and had given perfect satisfaction and that the board, he did not think, desired to make a change or experiment with any new system. He moved that the contract be awarded I. D. Smead.

Mr. Kohn entered a serious protest. He stated that the board had advertised for bids, and Bennet & Peck had taken the trouble to submit a bid, and send a representative to this city in their interest expecting to receive fair and just treatment, and be governed by the terms of the advertisement.

Mr. Smead spoke at some length of his system, and referred in no mild manner to firms whom, he said, have and at the present time are infringing upon his patents and plans.

Mr. Kohn spoke in favor of the Bennet & Peck bid. This was followed by a heated discussion between Mr. Kohn and Mr. Smead. Mr. Kohn made a motion to lay the matter on the table for two weeks, which was approved.

The finance committee reported the result of their consultation relative to the contract for school desks, and recommended that 100 desks be purchased from the Cleveland Furniture company, and the balance from the Chicago Automatic Desk company. An objection was raised and finally a motion carried to award two rooms to the Cleveland Furniture company, two rooms to the Favorite of Cleveland, and the remainder to the Chicago firm

The teachers committee then reported the new appointments for the year as follows:

THE DIFFERENCE.

In earlier times, when poesy was young,
The bards of eld in rhymeless verses sung,
Though for this want made ample recompense,
And what they lacked in rhyme made up in sense.

But modern poets, of this latter day,
Pursue, instead, a far divergent way.—
Who make their verses, like church bells, to chime,
And what they lack in sense make up in rhyme.

—T. H. Farnham in the New England Magazine.

The value of the words "not transferable," usually printed upon season tickets, has been tested in an English court and it has been decided to be unimpeachable. A cigarette has been put to a new use. A gambler in Cheyenne smoked them incessantly while playing, and so marked the backs of the cards with nicotine stain that they could be readily read by his confederates. The lectric current is, it is said, in successful use at the gun factory of St. Etinne, France, for tempering springs. The latter consists of steel wire wound spirally, and a current of 23 amperes at 45 volts is passed through. Rapid heating results, and when the required temperature has been reached the circuit is broken and the springs fall into a trough of water. One workman, it is said, can temper 2,400 springs per day by this method.

The word "Kanaka" is now used freely in connection with the labor question and the traffic in blacks in Queensland. According to certain colonists, the original word was "tamata," which in Fijian means a "human being." It then suffered corruption, by apparently as roundabout a process as that which changed "Noah" into the Chinese "Fohi." These "Kanakas" have no common language. The dialects are innumerable, and each is only understood by a few.

It appears that for several months an "electric express" has been in operation in St. Louis, running between Market street, South St. Louis, and Carondelet, and presumably doing a good business. The car in question makes two trips a day, has a capacity of 20,000 pounds, and the company operating it pays mileage to the owners of the road. It has its own wagons for delivering freight to and from the car at Sixth and Market streets, at Arsenal street and at Carondelet. The charges for such service to the business public are very reasonable—10 cents each for parcels from the dry goods, clothing and boot and shoe houses, regardless of weight or size; 50 cents for a trunk, etc. The car is largely patronized by houses of the above named class, as well as by furniture stores, wholesale liquor dealers, grocers and others. It is said the system will be extended to some of the other suburban roads in St. Louis.

A POLICEMAN'S GHOST.

The big policeman came in, borrowed a chew and, after drawing up the cuspidor within a convenient distance, squared himself in a chair, and I thought he was about to divulge a horrible murder, at least.

"Do you believe that a policeman is always asleep, young man?"

I replied that I thought there were occasional instances of insomnia, even on the police force, which seemed to reassure him and he began to narrate.

"Well, sir, there have been funny things happening for the past few nights. My beat takes me in a very respectable part of the city, around Evans street, and I tell you I have been pretty wide awake.

"Nearly every night I have met a young girl within a block or two of the same place. She was dressed in a long, circular cloak and a neat little hat. She is about 19 or 20, and, if I am any judge, she is a tearing beauty. Of course it seems strange that this girl should always be going somewhere at 2 o'clock in the morning, and when I catch sight of her I always keep her in sight until she disappears, Lord knows where, so that some man may not insult her.

"One night last week I saw her come around the corner with a big paper bundle. I followed her, and when she saw me coming she began to run until she came to a large hole where they were digging for water pipe. She threw her bundle into the hole, and grabbing up one of the red lanterns, she ran like the wind.

"I didn't know what deviltry she had been up to, so I took after her, and as I neared her she swung the lantern around over her head and let it fly plum at me. I dodged it, and when I looked for her again, so help me, she was gone.

"The goose pimples came out all over me. The lantern was real enough, and I picked that up and went back to the hole to look for the bundle. There it was at the bottom, and I climbed down.

"The hole was about six feet deep. I felt pretty shady, but got up grit enough to open the bundle, which I thought perhaps contained a baby.

"Well, it wasn't. It was a whole suit of men's clothes. They were of nice quality and there was a watch in the pocket of the vest and a number of other things in the other pockets. I heard a noise above me, and, looking up, I saw that girl watching me like a cat, her eyes as big as saucers. She yelled:

"'My God! He's got them!'

"Although I am a big man, I shivered all over for she glared at me like a lioness. As I pulled myself together and started to climb out she broke and ran like a deer and I lost her again.

"I carefully wrapped up the clothes again and put them in the end of a water pipe which was lying in the gutter, intending to take them down to the central office when I was relieved. I would have taken them to my patrol box, but I wanted to catch the girl, so I foolishly left them there. I searched all around several blocks, and when I returned I found the bundle gone.

"That was a stunner. I didn't know what to do. I was afraid the boys would give me the laugh if I told them, so I said nothing. That was all that happened that night.

"I didn't see anything of her for a night or two. Then I was standing at the corner, looking across the street, when someone said behind me:

"'You coward!' just like that.

"I looked around, and she disappeared again. Say, do you know I was getting pretty ticklish about that girl, and was glad when I got a day shift. For two weeks I was on days, and when it came my turn to go on again in the night, I still was shivery every time I thought about that girl.

"One night as I was coming down Evans I saw a man climbing over a veranda up into the second-story window of a house. I won't name who lived there because they don't want it to get out. I shouted to him to come down or I would shoot, but he had the window up and before I could draw my gun he had gone inside.

"I heard a terrible scream, and knew that he had awakened the young lady who sleeps there. Pretty soon the front door opened and the young lady came rushing out of the house, closely pursued by the man. The man had a stair rod and was waving it as if to smash the poor girl.

"I grabbed him and he fell all limp into my arms. What do you think? It wasn't a man, it was my ghost! I says: 'Miss, this ain't no man, it's a girl!'

"The poor, frightened lady came back, and, shoving the hat back on the other girl's head, says:

"'Therese! You poor child, what are doing?'

"The girl I was holding opened her eyes slowly and said:

"'Let me go. What do mean by holding me, sir? Eva, what is all the trouble?'

"The Eva girl came up to me and said, 'You can go now, I'll take care of her.'

"'She ought to be run in,' says I.

"'I tell you to go. I know her. She is my best friend, and has been walking in her sleep.'

"That settled me. I slid.

"I saw her brother next night, and he told me to shut up about it. It seems that it was his clothes that she nabbed to go prowling around in. I never reported it, but I thought it would be a good story for you fellows.

"Her brother told me that they lock her in now at night, and told me all sorts of pranks which she had been up to. But I saw this one. I don't feel scared any more, but I'm glad they've got her locked up. She might have killed her best friend if I hadn't been there."—Colorado Sun.

M. A. Ryerson, of Chicago, now traveling in Europe, has cabled to the new Chicago university a contribution of $150,000, conditioned that the proposed $1,000,000 is raised. Only $200,000 of this amount remains to be given, and this $1,000,000 means another from Mr. Rockefeller. Mr. Ryerson is the son of a wealthy lumber dealer.

DO YOU WANT GOLD?

Cripple Creek is not a health resort. It is a wealth resort. Quite a difference! Location, near Pike's Peak, in Colorado. Gold—bright, yellow gold, is found at grass roots and in the rock formation.

Reliable experts claim this is to-day the richest camp in Colorado. Assays average $100 per ton, and have run as high as $5,000. One hundred people a day are now rushing to Fremont, chief town of the district.

The chance of a life-time is worth looking after!

You can get there quickly and comfortably by taking Santa Fe Route. Only line with no change of cars from Chicago, Kansas City and other principal cities to Florissant, nearest railroad station, with daily stages to Fremont.

SAVE THE INFANTS.

In June the Babies Suffer.

Poorly Fed Babies Succumb to Disease Easily.

Physicians Advise the Use of Pure Diet.

Lactated Food is the Purest and Best.

What Will at Once Follow Wherever Used.

It is good for them, every one, fat babies and thin babies, with blue eyes and black and grey eyes, babies with dark hair and light hair and no hair at all, they live and thrive upon lactated food.

But the little ones who are not so well fed have to suffer.

They are, too many of them, easy victims to the prevailing summer complaint.

"It is absolutely certain," says a writer in the Boston Herald, speaking of the alarming increase of mortality among the children, "that the cause of this high death rate among infants is indigestion."

At the beginning of the warm season the best physicians gave warning that pure food must be used for the babies. This warning apparently did not reach every city and town. But in those where the newspapers published the discussions that were going on, large quantities of lactated food were sold, and this best of diets for children was used, and in these places, too, the statements of the able physicians who interested themselves in the matter have been borne out. The fewer deaths have occurred in those towns and cities where the larger amount of lactated food has been used.

Comparisons of this sort must be absolutely convincing.

Where everything else has failed to accomplish the desired result lactated food, which is the best substitute for mother's milk, has succeeded.

There are several weeks of hot weather to come, and during that time unless lactated food is used, the local physicians say that dreadful mortality and an increasing amount of sickness among the little ones will continue.

The one safe plan is to feed the infants upon lactated food.

The most eminent specialists in children's diseases have publicly advised mothers that if they would be upon the safe side, they should use lactated food. It strengthens the weak ones, and keeps the healthy babies strong.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The People's Party is in Session.

Delegates to Omaha to be Selected and a Full State Ticket Named.

Redfield, S. D., June 21.—The state convention of the people's party for the purpose of nominating sixteen delegates to the national convention at Omaha, and also to nominate a state ticket, opened here today.

It is to be followed by an industrial encampment to occupy the entire week. The state farmers' alliance will also be in annual session here during the week. The independent leaders calculate on making a favorable impression on the farmers of the state. The fusion question has been thoroughly canvassed, and although almost all of the leaders of the people's party are opposed to open fusion, yet they think that something can be done to make the state safely anti-republican.

If in the election of 1890 the two forces had been united they would have swept the state by over 10,000 majority, and every state officer, congressman, and minor state official would have been wrenched from the republicans.

As it was by fusion in local politics in the various counties the state legislature was captured, and a combination of the democrats and independents in the legislature resulted in the election of James H. Kyle, an independent, to the United States senate. Since that time politicians of all kinds have realized what can be accomplished by fusion, and to-day the republicans in this state stand in fear and trembling lest the forces antagonistic to them should combine.

THE CHICAGO WAY.

A group of western and eastern members were recently sitting in a committee room in the house, at Washington, when the subject came up of Sousa, the famous band-master of the Marine band, going to Chicago.

"Why, Chicago'll want the capitol next," an eastern member remarked.

It is this "Chicago way" of getting good things that has given the great Prairie City her pre-eminence in so many important business lines. Chicago is the greatest manufacturing center in America, and investors have a fashion of following in the wake of factory strongholds, for that means stability and permanence.

In the center of Chicago's best residence district, Sheldon Heights is situated. A lot in this most desirable, growing location is a safe, permanent investment. The syndicate of wealthy and successful men owning this property have prepared a handsome booklet, "The Way to Win," and a request sent to Jas. E. & Robt. L. McElroy, Chamber of Commerce, Chicago, will bring it to the address of any person who wishes reliable information about Chicago's interesting future. The prices and terms of lots in Sheldon Heights are within any saving person's reach. Write to-day, and mention this paper.

NATIONAL SESSION.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 21.—The annual session of the National Council of the Junior Order of United Americans opened to-day at Congress hall, nearly every state being represented. The opening session was purely formal and an adjournment was taken in order to enable the delegates to participate in the grand parade this afternoon. Nearly ten thousand members of the order will be in line. At the conclusion of the parade the commanderies will give a reception to the members of the national council at Congress hall pavilion.

THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE.

The Document Presented to the Council Last Night.

He Tells of the Improvements Made During the Year and Makes Some Suggestions.

The annual message of Mayor Emmick was presented to the board of councilmen last evening. The principal points treated are as follows:

Toledo, O., June 15, 1892.

To the Honorable Common Council of the City of Toledo:

Gentlemen—Delay has occurred in the report of the affairs of the city, which I am required by law to give you, because of delay in obtaining reports of some of the departments.

The year 1891 was remarkable in our municipal history principally for the large amount of street and sewer improvements made, and the completion of the city pipe line.

The amount expended during the year 1891 for streets and sewers, as shown by the city civil engineer's report, being $1,501,449.90, an increase over the amount in 1890 of $692,000. Much the larger part of this was, of course, for street improvements. A total of 23 31-100 miles of streets have been improved during the year, and we have now 84.22 miles of improved streets in the city.

It would seem that we had gone far enough, if not too far, in the matter of improving streets, and yet the demand of the people for these improvements continues, and with some exceptions the assessments levied are being paid with promptness and little complaint.

What is needed and what your honorable body should at once consider, is the tearing up of these pavements after they have once been laid.

Continuing, the mayor refers at considerable length to the necessity of caring for our streets and quotes ex-City Engineer Wickenden, who suggested that rigid rules be adopted requiring that all pipe connections be made six months or a year before the pavement is laid. The mayor also renews the recommendation made when he first assumed the duties of his office, that the payment of all street assessments be promptly enforced.

"In the matter of city finances I desire to direct your attention to a careful consideration of the report of ex-City Auditor Walker, a very able and complete document.

This shows nearly every fund of the city to be depleted to such an extent that we can only hope to run along by the most scrupulous care and economy.

On January 1, 1892, $20,000 of the income of 1892 for the general fund had already been used. The bridge, sewer, sanitary and corporation prison funds were all more or less in the same condition.

The changes made by recent legislatures in throwing one-half the cost of street lighting and all other charges for interest on water works bonds on the general tax duplicate, has left our finances in bad shape, inasmuch as the limit of the levy has not been extended enough to enable the necessary amounts to be raised for these expenses, in addition to that required for the general purposes of the corporation.

It will be noticed by the auditor's report that we have not been able to levy for any of the funds, except interest and general, as much as last year, and the consequence is we shall find ourselves short for some time to come, and will no doubt be obliged to borrow to meet current expenses. This is to be deprecated; we should, if possible, raise funds enough each year to meet the expenses of that year. "Pay as you go," is a good motto for municipal corporations as well as individuals, and it is doubtful if the present control by legislatures of municipal corporation finances is not productive of more harm than good. We should be allowed to govern ourselves in this respect.

During the year 1891 bonds of the city have been issued as follows

Street improvement bonds..	$741,827 53
General street improvement bonds to pay for intersections..........	191,850 00
For bridge purposes........	34,000 00
For sanitary purposes........	10,000
For police patrol barn........	10,000 00
For market purposes........	7,000 00
For refunding bonds falling due in 1892..........	92,000 00

The market bonds are to be paid, principal and interest, from revenues derived from hte sale of stalls in the market house.

The street improvement bonds being paid out of special assessments levied on the property, are not included in the funded debt of the city.

In addition to the above, there was issued during the year $371,000 of natural gas bonds making a total of bonds issued during the year, aside from street improvement bonds, $663,650.00.

The bonded debt of the city outstanding Jan. 1, 1891, was	$3,536,922 85
Outstanding Jan. 1, 1892..	4,190,272 85
Showing a nominal increase in bonded debt....	663,650 00
Less bonds and securities purchased by trustees of sinking fund..........	15,000 00
Actual increase of bonded bebt..............	648,650 00
The amount of bonded indebtedness Jan. 1, 1892.	4,190,272 00
Deducting the bonds and securities owned by the sinking fund........	209,863 00
Net bonded debt, Jan. 1, 1892	3,980,409 00

It seems to me that a fund should be created and a special levy made to pay the cost of future street intersections. No more bonds should be issued for that purpose.

While an increase of debt is always to be deplored, still I do not think we have cause to be alarmed in that direction, and I cannot do better than repeat the language of ex-Mayor Hamilton in his last message to your honorable body: "When we remember that January 1, 1881, our bonded debt was $3,198,487, or within $328,000 of the amount 10 years later, that at that date the duplicate amounted to only $18,156,059, whereas on the 1st of January, 1891, it was 34,422,900 (old duplicate), and when, in addition, it is borne in mind that the average interest at the first date was considerably higher than in 1890, it is apparent that with the progress of time the burdens of municipal indebtedness have very greatly diminished."

The water works bonds require the greatest outlay for interest, and it does seem as though that department ought to do more than it does to defray these charges.

While it is true they are making large improvements at their pumping station, they ought to contribute at least a portion of their earnings for this interest.

Mayor Emmick recommends the purchase of street sweeping machines and the establishment of a wheel tax. The clause devoted to street railroads is brief, but calls attention to the miserable condition of the tracks on Summit street.

On the city natural gas line the mayor writes:

"The struggle carried on so long by citizens to supply themselves with natural gas does not seem to be ended. Every step taken to increase the efficiency of the department and to give the people of Toledo better service, is fought with the same relentless, unscrupulous hostility which has characterized from the start the opposition to this part of the city government.

"The plant is here, the money of the city is invested, and whatever may have been our opinions originally, as to the propriety of this venture, our duty now is to do all in our power to make it an unqualified success. The trustees will need some aid from your honorable body in procuring more territory and wells. I trust you will give them the necessary support for this purpose.

"Great stress has been laid upon the fact that our interest bearing debt and our interest charges have been increased by the construction of this plant and that our taxes have been increased by reason thereof, and yet every tax-payer resident of Toledo who buys his gas of the city has saved much more than the increased taxes in the decreased price at which he has obtained his fuel."

In my judgment the gas trustees are now selling gas too cheaply, and with the expiration of their present contracts the price should be raised to a fair, just amount.

It appears from the report of the trustees that the total cost of the gas plant, to December 31, 1891, was $1,181,743.36. Of this amount $750,000 has been met by proceeds of sale of bonds; the balance has either been paid from proceeds of sale of gas or is a debt which we shall have in some way to provide for.

It appears that the income from the sale of gas amounts monthly, in winter, to $20,032.30, and in summer to $5,798.53, which would make in round figures an annual income of $154,000. This in a few years would materially assist in paying off the debt incurred for this plant, as well as providing for interest.

The fire department, water works department and police department are all reported in good shape, and the message concludes as follows:

Let us work together for the continued improvement and development of Toledo, doing all in our power to assist therein and endeavor honestly and faithfully to discharge the duties of the trust imposed upon us, though we may make mistakes and commit blunders, we shall have the satisfaction of knowing ourselves that our motives have been right. Very respectfully,

V. J. EMMICK, Mayor.

Colored Delegates in Trouble in Indiana.

Two Florida Republicans Sent to the State Prison for Two Years.

Peru, Ind., June 21.—Two colored delegates to the republican convention in Minneapolis, from Florida, on their way home, not having tickets or money, were put off the train here by a brakeman.

They attacked the brakeman so viciously that they were arrested.

They were convicted of murderous assault and sentenced to two years' imprisonment. They were taken to Michigan City last night. They gave their names as John Rogers and John Craig.

A NEW TYPE OF BULLET.

An Invention That Has the Good Qualities of Small and Large Calibres.

English ordnance experts are interested at present over a new style of bullet for shoulder rifles that has been invented by Gen. Tweedle. The bullet has a case which is closed at the base and open at the head, the case ending about half way between the shoulder and the point. Upon striking the head spreads out like a mushroom, and suddenly becomes a projectile of much larger calibre than it was at the time it left the gun.

By this means it is thought to secure the advantages of both the small and the large calibre weapons. During its flight it has the properties of the small-sized bullet, little resistance to the air. When it strikes, however, it does not content itself with inflicting a mere wound which may or may not incapacitate the soldier struck, but it shatters and tears, placing the one hit hors du combat on the instant.

Although not primarily intended to pierce armor of any thickness, it has been found that the Tweedle bullet is much more effective for this purpose than any of the smaller calibres that have been tried in competition with it.

Washboards Make It Warm.

Bobbing up and down over them is pretty hot work. That rub, rub, rub on them is the best thing in the world to warm you up, and tire you out, and wear holes in light and delicate summer garments. Why don't you use Pearline, and take it easy? You can keep cool—and yet have the work better done.

Pearline takes away the rubbing, and the washboard, and the warm work. It gives you more time to yourself—and saves your money.

BOARDMAN & GRAY PIANOS

ESTABLISHED 1837.

Sold continuously since 1870 at 219 Summit Street.

This make, sold in large numbers for more than 21 years by a reliable house, recommended and indorsed by nearly all of the best musicians and teachers in Toledo, has become a formidable barrier to the sale of other first-class pianos offered by competing dealers and their agents, by reason of their constantly increasing sale and popularity. Competitors, alarmed and uneasy, resort to many unreasonable as well as untrue statements, which they work off on confiding individuals, and cause them to be circulated in this city and elsewhere. Among these old chestnuts, is the statement that "The Whitney & Currier company manufacture the Boardman & Gray, or have a proprietary interest in their manufacture, and are actuated by that interest, to praise their merit and push their sale." The first part of this statement is untrue. This company has no proprietary interest in the manufacture of any piano. It is actuated in recommending the Boardman & Gray piano by the same motives which actuate any honest individual in recommending that which he knows to be of superior merit, and also by the same motives any one would have in pushing the sale of any successful meritorious article in which a reasonable profit may be realized, and that which is true of Boardman & Gray in this respect, is true of other makes this company has for sale. The superior facilities the Whitney & Currier company has in purchasing, enable it to give greater value for a like sum of money than can be had of its competitors. No other house can show an equal line of first-class Pianos, nor the number from which to select in making a purchase. All are invited to call and see for themselves, whether wishing to buy or not.

THE WHITNEY & CURRIER CO., 219 Summit street.

Why Should Piano Dealers and Their Agents Go Out of Their Way to Decry the Superior Merits of the Boardman & Gray Pianos? The Reason is Obvious.

IN TRADING CIRCLES.

Both at Our Home and Abroad.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Currents for Produce and Other Articles.

The receipts of wheat to-day at Minneapolis and Duluth are 332,319 bu, and at five other western points 249,474 bu. The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were, wheat 151,492 bu and flour to an aggregate of 260,000 bu. Export of corn 156,075 bu, and of oats 28,931 bu.

English markets open lower for wheat and steady for corn.

The Mark Lane Express extract herein says the crop of the United Kingdom will most likely be 8,000,000 bus short of last year's production.

In southern Illinois the harvesting of wheat has been stopped by rains.

There is afloat on the ocean from India for Continent and United Kingdom 6,568,000 bus of wheat, which proves that there are imporant sources of supply of bread beside American.

First Car of New Wheat.

We noted yesterday the purchase by one of our enterprising houses, of the first car of new wheat, at St. Louis. To-day the wheat has arrived. The quality is fine and dry, weight 61 pounds. It comes from Waco, Texas. This distance equals half way to San Francisco, and it is on a straight line from Toledo. Last year Chicago received the first car of new wheat June 18. In 1890 it was July 7. Let no one expect the whole crop is coming because of an extra early car. "One swallow does not make a summer," neither does it make a man tight.

Report comes from Chicago that prohibition of export of all grain except rye has been removed by Russia, but the report is not corroborated from other sources. When ammunition gets low the bulls resort to this explosive.

There is no change of note in the bearings of the markets, and no new influences of any note. The changes in wheat, corn and oats have been light. The wheat market is said to be supported by the purchases of the leading plunger at Chicago. Sentiments of some leading houses there seem to be that commercially both wheat and corn are dear. We feel like challenging that opinion so far as wheat is concerned, until it is more clearly shown what English and European harvests are to be.

Closing prices are generally very near those of yesterday.

Foreign markets are quoted closing lower.

In New York June wheat closed 1-4c and July 1-8c lower. June corn 3-4c and July 3-8c higher. July oats 3-8c higher.

In Chicago July wheat closed 1-4c lower. June corn 1-2c lower, and July 1-4c higher July oats 3-8c higher.

In Toledo we have had a dull market for wheat, and the leading future has been weak and has declined. The approach of harvest weakens dealers. If we can only get the Hatch bill passed, so as to go into effect by July 10, we can guarantee to the farmers the fruits of their labors in a 10c decline in prices.

July wheat opened at 82 3-4c, a loss of 3-8c, and closed at 82 1-4c, a loss of 7-8c. June sold at 86 1-8c, and closed at 85 1-4c, a loss of 1c. August sold at 81 1-2c and closed at 81 1-4c, a loss of 3-8c.

Cash wheat was in better request, and cheaper. No. 2 soft sold early at 86c, and declined and closed at 85 1-4c, a loss of 1c. No. 3 soft at 82c, smutty at 77 1-2c

New York, June 21.—The racing board of control yesterday after an investigation of the recent running of India Rubber at Morris Park, passed a resolution revoking the license of Trainer A. F. Van Ness. This practically rules him from the turf and puts him in a bad place, as he is already outlawed from the trotting turf. Morello, considered the best two-year-old of the year, has been run in Van Ness' name and will probably not be seen at the big tracks again.

WONDERFUL SET OF CHESSMEN.

A remarkable set of chessmen has just been completed by an American mechanic. The pieces are made of silvered bronze, and the period of costume and equipment is A. D., 1194. all the characters being historical and contemporary and strictly accurate in every detail of heraldic blazonry and costume.

The knights are in chain-mail armor, with shield, axe, sword and dagger. Their fu rcoats have each tht individual blazon of the wearer. The queens wear royal robes and carry sceptres. The bishops are in church vetments, with cross and crozier.

The pawns are men-at arms in kneeling poture, with spear, billhook and knife. The white men are English, the black French. The English king and queen are Richard I. and his Berengaria.

The bishops are Herbert Walter, archbishop of Canterbury, and William Longchamps, bishop of Ely; and the knights are the Earl of Salisbury and Baron of Worcester. The castle is Anglo-Norman, and is a perfectly accurate representation of feudal architecture.

The French king and queen are Philip and Ingeborg, his Danish spouse, th e bishops b eing de Dreux and de Sully of Beauvais and Paris. The knights are also well known men of the twelfth century, and the castle is Franco-Norman. The set has taken upwards of six years to make.—New York Home Journal.

UNIVERSALITY OF MOSQUITOES.

"I have been as far south as Patagonia, and as far north as Iceland," said Capt. Frank Bowers, now at the Laclede, "and I have yet to find a country that was not infested by mosquitoes. It is the general opinion that these pests are confined to warm countries, but that is a mistake. In the short summers of Iceland they fairly swarm, and a man may get all the bites he can take care of in the Straits of Magellan if he goes there at the proper time. Mexico was a terra incognita to the mosquito until a few years ago, but he is plentiful enough there now. It is said that they were imported, with much other undesirable live stock, from the United States. If that be true, I do not wonder at the dislike with which the descendants of the Montezumas regard the Americanos."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

CURE ALL THE PILL MAKER.

It was a lecture delivered by a learned purveyor of liver pills, and illustrated by diagrams of the frame of man.

"That," he explained, pointing out a totally different spot, "is where man's liver is."

"Excuse me," observed the man in spectacles, "but I am a surgeon, and that's not where his liver is."

"Never you mind where his liver is," retorted the lecturer. "If it was his big toe or his left ear my pills would reach it and shake it for him. On that you can bet your gig lamps."

The New York Fire Works store now open on St. Clair street, opposite Popp's stable, in the Hall block.

ENLARGED!

Dr. Kalkhoff's Great Medical Establishment

Now Occupies the Entire Upper Floors of the Blocks at 505, 507 and 509 Summit St., Between Oak and Orange.

The Many Marvelous Cures Effected by Dr. Kalkhoff, the European Specialist Have Given Him the Largest Private Practice in the United States.

For the second time within the past year Dr. Kalkhoff has been compelled to enlarge his extensive medical institution in order to properly care for his constantly increasing number of patients from all parts of the civilized world. The enlargement this time has been effected by leasing the upper portion of the adjoining block. The doctor will use this large amount of additional room for still more special departments, for the treatment of chronic diseases and for an extensive department in which to correspond with and treat patients by mail. This last extension of Dr. Kalkhoff's quarters will include in his offices, surgery and laboratory, the upper floors of the blocks located at 505, 507 and 509 Summit street, between Oak and Orange. The entrance to all these departments will be the same as heretofore.

The remarkable success achieved by Dr. Kalkhoff in establishing in Toledo a medical institution of international importance, is the direct result of his remarkable medical skill in curing all forms of desperate and chronic diseases. The doctor's exhaustive knowledge of all departments of medical and surgical science, was acquired in the best colleges of Europe and America, supplemented by an extensive professional experience in the great European hospitals, and also in the United States army hospitals during the war. He continues to be a persistent and progressive student, studying the peculiarities of each individual case, with a knowledge thoroughly abreast of all the latest scientific developments in the medical world.

The time and attention of Dr. Kalkhoff is thoroughly occupied in curing difficult chronic diseases that have baffled the skill of the ordinary physician. The volume of praise that comes up from the multitude he has cured of their maladies is so great that the occasional growl of some jealous, narrow-minded little doctor is drowned as is a whisper in the roar of Niagara. Suffering humanity will continue to go to Dr. Kalkhoff's, where their friends have been cured, in spite of the whine of a few bigots who foolishly denounce all who refuse to do business according to their methods. While there are doubtless some bogus doctors who publish their cards in the newspapers, there are more than ten times as many ignoramuses who do not advertise. During the years that Dr. Kalkhoff has practiced medicine in Toledo he has depended solely upon his skill as a physician, and has never boasted of his credentials. A skilled physician like Dr. Kalkhoff, who perfected the health department of Milwaukee, won distinction in the United States army hospital service and stood the highest in his European and American college and hospital work, looks with pity upon those who are angry because he cures the patients they have left to die. The basis of permanent success like that of Dr. Kalkhoff, is genuine merit. Dr. Kalkhoff's recent large increase of room for his special departments will give him still better facilities for treating and curing all classes of difficult chronic diseases.

LEGAL NOTICE.

George W. Thomas and Frank A. Crosby, Plaintiffs.
vs.
The Unknown Heirs and Legal Representatives of James H. Bird, Deceased, Defendants.

The unknown heirs and legal representatives of James H. Bird, deceased, will take notice that on the 20th day of June, 1892, Plaintiffs George W. Thomas and Frank A. Crosby, filed their petition in the court of common pleas in and for Lucas county, Ohio, against them as defendants, alleging that the plaintiffs are the owners of the legal title to, and in the possession of lots eight, nine and ten in Wheeler's Addition to the city of Toledo, Lucas county, Ohio, and that the above named defendants appear of record to have some claim or interest in said premises, which casts a cloud over plaintiffs' title to said lots. But plaintiffs aver that said defendants in fact have no right title or interest of any kind whatsoever in or to said lots, or any part thereof, and asks that said defendants be required to fully set forth their interests, if any in said real estate or be forever afterwards barred therefrom, and further prays that upon the final hearing of said case, they, plaintiffs, may have a decree of said court quieting their title to said lots and wholly excluding said defendants from any and all interest therein.

Said petition will be for hearing on the 26th day of September, 1892, or as soon thereafter as a hearing can be obtained. Said defendants are required to answer said petition on or before August 27th, 1892, or judgment will be taken against them as prayed for in said petition.

Attorneys for Plaintiffs.

Holmes, of Constantine, Michigan, Elnathan Holmes and Angeline Holmes, of South Rockwood, Michigan, Elizabeth Hunt, of Niles, Michigan, Peter Pecott, of Quincy, Michigan, Rachel Lewis Jacobs, Michael Jacobs, Peter Lewis and Ann Lewis, all of Deerfield, Michigan, Margaret Lewis Culver and Alonzo Culver, of Cadillac, Michigan, Elizabeth Lewis Turner, of Blissfield, Michigan, Charles Lewis, Ella Lewis, and Jennie Lewis, all of Petersburg, Michigan, and the unknown heirs and devisees of Rebecca Sibley, deceased, are hereby notified that on the 16th day of May, 1892, Elizabeth L. Nye, as plaintiff, filed against them and others as defendants, in the clerk's office in the court of common pleas of Lucas county, Ohio, her petition, alleging that she is the owner in fee simple, has the legal title to and is in actual possession of the north half (1-2) of the west one-eighth (1-8) of the northwest quarter (1-4) of section twenty-two (22), town nine (9) south, range seven (7) east, containing ten (10) acres of land, more or less, situate in Washington township of Lucas county, Ohio.

The said defendants appear of record and claim to have an interest in said real estate; that in fact said defendants or either of them have no interest in said real estate, and said petition prays that the defendants may be decreed to have no interest in said real estate and be forever barred of claiming any interest therein, and that plaintiff may be quieted in her title to said real estate as against said defendants.

Said defendants are required to file their answer in said action, which is still pending, on or before the 16th day of July, 1892, or be forever barred of any interest in said lands.

DRUMMERS CAN BE MEAN.

"I saw a mean trick played on an exquisite the other day," said S. S. Burton, a commercial pilgrim from Cincinnati, O., now at the Lindell. "The Evansville train was crowded, but the exquisite secured a seat to himself, piled his grips beside him and refused to move them. Finally a little drummer came along, asked for a part of the seat and was refused. He coolly placed the luggage on the floor and sat down. At the next station a colored woman with two greasy little pickaninnies got on and was looking vainly about for a seat, when the drummer arose, and, with Chesterfieldian courtesy, tendered her his. She accepted it, and the disgusted exquisite took up a position on the woodbox."—St Louis-Globe Democrat.

IN THE GLOAMING.

They had been married fourteen weeks. "Frank, dear," she said one evening in the gloaming, "would you miss me very much if I should die?"

"Don't ask me such gruesome questions, darling," he protested.

"But would you, dear?" she insisted.

"More than words can express," he said, cluthing her hands as if he were losing her even then.

"And, Frank, dear, do you think you could ever find any one to take my place?"

The whippoorwill's mournful threnody came from the old fence overgrown with thickets, and a bat hirled about in the starlit shadows of the night.

"No, darling," he murmured, "but I could try."

And a cloud came slowly up from the hill-haggled horizon.—Detroit Free Press.

PARENTAL FORESIGHT.

Father of the family—No; John is not what you would call a promising boy, but I am going to do the very best I can for him. I expect to send him to college, give him a full classical course and let him choose a profession. He will be able at least to earn a living with such a start as that.

Guest—How about George?

Father (with conscious pride)—Ah! George can take care of himself. That boy, sir, is going to be one of the best base ball pithers in this country.—Chicago Tribune.

CURIOSITIES ABOUT AMBER.

It is a curious fact that clear yellow amber exhibits no peculiarities of texture when examined by the most perfect microscope. On the other hand, if opaque or white amber be cut into thin slices and examined by a microscope of from 200 to 500 diameters, round and oblong cavities of varying sizes may be observed in the interior. The cavities in milk-white amber are smallest; in the clear yellow there are absolutely none, while in the opaque yellow varieties they have the appearance of a collection of miniature soap bubbles. Water appears to be contained in these minute cavities, for if fresh amber be exposed to intense heat for some minutes it very sensibly diminishes in weight. from this it would appear that this peculiar fossilized resin will admit of water diffusing through its substance. Another oddity in this connection (taking the above into consideration) is the fact that the insects found in it are always perfectly dry.
